Chartered on February 24, 1844, The University of Mississippi began its first session on November 6, 1848, with a student body of eighty and a faculty of four who offered instruction in a general curriculum in the liberal arts.

Continually strengthening the College of the Liberal Arts, the trustees and the faculty sought to broaden the work of the institution by the creation of professional and specialized schools so as to build it into a university in fact as well as in name.

Coeducation came with the admission of women in 1882, and the first woman was added to the faculty in 1885.

The admission of blacks in the university came at a much later date and met with some resistance. James Meredith, admitted in the fall of 1962, came to the university as a transfer student and opened doors for other blacks, both graduate and undergraduate.

Dr. Lucius Williams, associate professor of educational administration, is the first black faculty member. He joined the faculty in the early seventies and presently serves as Assistant Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Associate Dean of the School of Education.

The oldest building on the campus and still the center of the administration is the Lyceum. Begun in 1846 and completed in 1848, the Lyceum consists of the admissions department, the registration facilities, the financial center (bursar), and houses the offices of the Chancellor, the Vice Chancellors, and the School of Liberal Arts.

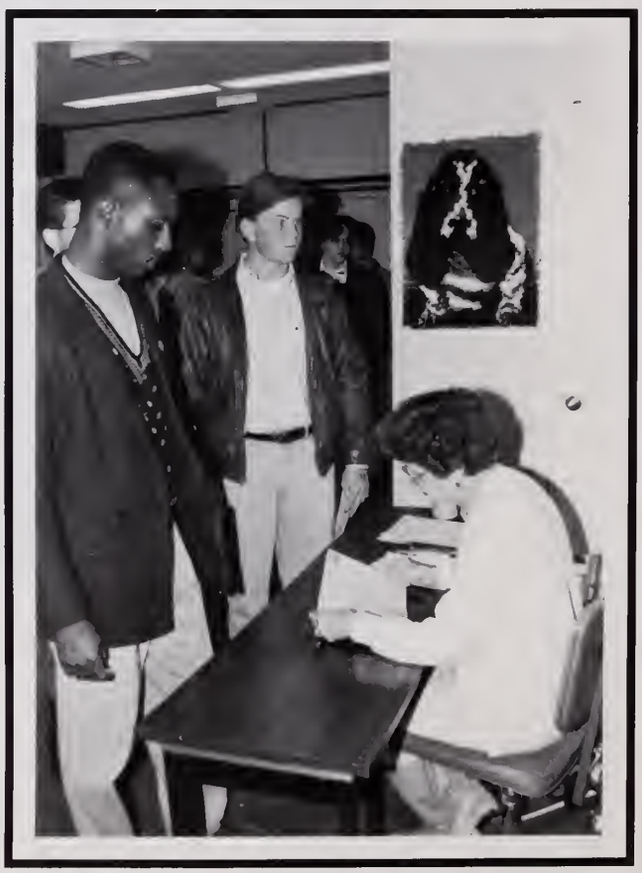

The Oxford campus has been growing since 1848, and today it is home to more than 10,000 students, pursuing more than 100 different academic programs in a setting that is both remarkable for its beauty and renowned for its facilities.

The Ole Miss campus includes 42 classroom buildings, 19 residence halls, 25 Greek houses, a university theatre for campus theatrical and musical productions, a new new indoor recreation center, and abundant athletic facilities, both varsity and intramural.

Ole Miss is more than a collection of buildings, books, and computers. It's a living thing, made up of its history, the background of its faculty, and the future of its students. It is a community of men and women devoted to the preservation, increase, and application of knowledge. It is a culture, dedicated to preparing individuals to experience any culture or to make a new one. •

DID YOU KNOW. . .

. . .when Oxford was founded in 1837, the citizens chose the name "Oxford" after Oxford, England in hopes that a great university would be founded here? When the state legislature chose the site for the university "Oxford" beat "Mississippi City" by one vote.

. . .the first fraternity formed on the Ole Miss campus in 1848 was the Rainbow Fraternity?

. . . the first football game was held in Autumn 1893 in Oxford against Southwestern Baptist University, and Latin professor Bondurant was the first coach?

. . .in 1897 students were prohibited from attending any dancing parties in Oxford and elswhere from the beginning of exams until the end of commencement exercises?

. . .the first female residence hall was nicknamed "The Coop," and, in 1904, its occupants paid $9.50 a month for room and board?

. . .that some of the trees in the grove have been there since the opening of the university in 1848?

. . .the first volume of the annual, the OLE MISS, appeared in 1897? The name was suggested to the eitors in 1896 by Elma Meek, and by 1910 "Ole Miss" had come to be applied to the athletic teams and since, it has become synonymous with the university itself.

The perfect theme and the perfect way to describe the end of the old and the beginning of the new decade seemed almost impossible to find.

Students, however, were more than willing to share their ideas for theme and cover design. Some of the suggestions were "Enter into the World of 1990," "Breaking All Barriers," and, perhaps the most interesting, "Rebelbusters" a take-off on the popular movie "Ghostbusters" with a rebel flag instead of a ghost.

During the past ten years, Ole Miss has experienced a tremendous influx of changes. Old buildings were renovated for better office space; new parking lots were built and old ones improved; athletic facilities were built, expanded and some were planned as future projects; values and traditions were challenged; a new Chancellor took office; a major motion picture, "Heart of Dixie," was filmed; a new flag was adopted by the senior class; enrollment reached an all-time high and the list goes on.

Although the decade has just begun, one can see the evidence of newness at the university. Whether it is a new office building or a new face, a new standard or a new parking space, Ole Miss has grown to develop an identity all its own.

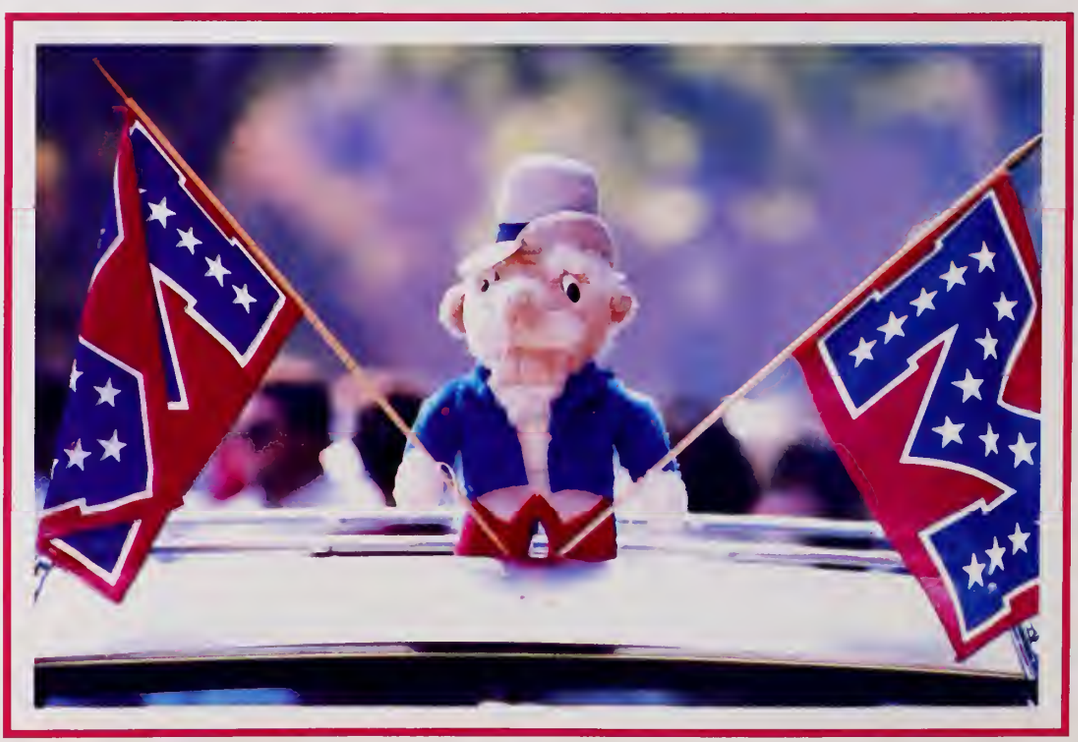

Combined efforts of the students and faculty have enabled Ole Miss to progress in a positive direction and thus deflected much of the negativeness that tended to be associated with the university.

As students, we share a common goal: to get through those classes needed to graduate so that one day we can assume our roles as leaders in the world. Methods of achieving this goal may range from taking 18 hours each semester, studying and making all A's to taking 12 hours, partying and barely passing. By providing such things as student government, hands on training, student-teacher conferences and some social functions to relieve stress that comes with studies, the university has paved the way for many students to achieve success.

While it is true that Ole Miss is a place, it is a special place where ideas are nurtured and allowed to unfold, a place that equips students for excellence in academics and athletics, a place whose faculty and students take steps to ensure equality, and a place that is in the heart of all students, faculty, and staff of Ole Miss.

New Directions seemed like the perfect theme for a school with so many changes. For what better way can one describe a school that is definitely progressing positively? New Directions — A vision for tomorrow.

College days are like no other in life, the last gasp for any form of the carelessness of youth — one foot in adulthood and one in high school.

College times are learning to pay bills, getting credit cards without credintials and learning close up what an ugly dragon beauracracy is and exactly how much red tape it could spit in your face.

It is a time when total strangers become best friends who will forever share memories of wacky, wild, sweet and subtle adventures.

It is a time when dreams began to develop into reality and steps are taken to insure sucess.

To an incoming freshmen, the college days may seem as those of freedom — no more parents with their silly rules — and entering them may seem exciting.

But to an outgoing senior, those days will be remembered and cherished for a life-time — the lessons learned and the experiences gained — and exiting them may seem a bit frightening.

These days are ones that should not only involve the elements of an academic college life, but also should include a liberal dose of extracurricular activities that will enhance the life of a student and help to shape his/her future. •

USA Today: Oxford's tops

Oxford one of six top college towns in America

With the release of "Heart of Dixie," Ole Miss and Oxford have had their share of publicity recently, but the public eye viewed the area once more in the September 1, 1989 issue of USA Today.

Oxford appeared in a feature naming, six top college towns in America.

Writer Bonnie Jacob said the university is mentioned in the article because of its research concerning black cultural aspects of the South, an aspect out of line with the historical image the country has of Ole Miss. Her article features the blues archive and some of the cultural aspects of Mississippi preserved by the university.

Ron Schoolmeester, editor of travel, said USA Today staff inquired nationwide about favorite college towns and Oxford was mentioned in the survey. Each entry was discussed, resulting in the staff's choice of Oxford as one of six top college towns in a list that excludes metropolitan areas such as Boston.

Others featured are Princeton, N.J., and Princeton University; Williamstown, Maine, and Williams College; Bloomington, Ind., and Indiana University; Kempe, Ariz., and Arizona State University; Charlottlesville, Va., and the University of Virginia.

Jacob said of her interviews with the coordinator of university news, "Jan Robertson has been incredibly helpful. She gave me a vivid picture of the school and her love for Oxford."

Pamela Begley, Oxford Tourism Council director, said she sent magazine articles featuring Oxford to Jacob along with specific information about the city, its homes and Faulkner.

The article combines that information with interviews of Robertson, Begley and Ann Abadie, associate director of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture.

This confirms what we already know about Oxford -- that it's a great place to live," said Max Hipp, director of the Oxford-Lafayette County Chamber of Commerce.

Begley said Oxford is also featured in the September issue of Travel and Leisure Magazine. •

Dixie Week

When Ole Miss students think of spring, they think of fun in the sun, parties at Sardis and Dixie Week.

Centered around activities held in the Grove, Dixie Week is a campus-wide spring ritual that gives students a chance to sit back, have some fun, and enjoy the beauty of the Oxford campus.

Throughout the week, various artists entertain at noon on the Union steps, and the Neville Brothers who brought the Grove to life with their own style of the blues gave the final concert.

Along with the music, Dixie Week offered various noon socials such as the ice cream social and the shrimp social. For those students who become restless with spring fever, Dixie Week also provides activities and contests such as the Frisbee Bowl Contest and the Golf tournament. And one of the most popular activities is tie-dying T-shirts.

Dixie Week wouldn't be complete without Red and Blue Weekend. It is during the weekend that the Rebel defense and offense meet to sharpen their skills.

During the game's halftime 90 alumni, including National Football League standouts Archie Manning, Ben Williams, and Rebel Coach Billy Brewer suited up to play their own version of the Red and Blue game.

Summer students reap many benefits

POWER. Casey Prewitt a junior from Clarksdale works on strengthening her back hand at tennis camp.

The '89 summer sessions not only saw an increase in tuition, but also an increase in the number of students enrolled. Students who stayed at Ole Miss during the summer were exposed to a special part of Ole Miss that few students have the opportunity to enjoy.

For those students who have never attended summer school, Ole Miss without a parking problem is impossible to even imagine. Summer students, however, are forced to find a new universal argument to continuously complain about since parking is not a problem.

Also, the student dream of no long lines at registration and fee payment becomes a reality in the summer. Walking straight through registration spoils summer students and makes them even less tolerable of the lines on the sidewalk outside of Turner Complex that welcome them back in the fall.

Although summer life is usually slow, campus comes alive with the invasions of hundreds of junior high and high school students who attend camps for cheerleading, tennis, baseball, basketball, and football.

Precollege weekends also add to the excitement with future freshmen running around campus with their poster-sized maps searching for the Lyceum.

Except for these invasions, the entire campus' atmosphere is much more relaxed than usual, and even professors seem to be a little laid back.

More time is available to do those "things-you- want-to-do-but-never-have-time-for" — spending the day relaxing at Sardis, taking a road trip to Graceland to try and spot Elvis, taking the nature trail to Rowan Oak, or just bonding with friends at the Hoka.

Another benefit of summer school is the opportunity to make friends with people who go to other colleges and universities, but who wised up and decided to become Rebels for at least the summer.

Meeting and living with students from Millsaps, Auburn, and the University of Montana can provide for many late-night conversations comparing college life.

Summer school is best described as the slow, southern life. Ole Miss in the summer is almost a completely different university. And, summer school students agree you haven't been to Ole Miss until you've been to summer school.

Summer Sessions

Summer Showcase

Ole Miss theatre celebrates the Festival of Southern Theatre

Since its inception four years ago, the Festival has grown to be an event of importance in the Southeast and one of interest internationally.

Highly recognized critics from as far away as New York and Los Angeles visited the Festival this summer to participate in the production and discussion of three exciting brand-new plays by very promising Southern playwrights.

The Festival included a public symposium with the three playwrights and local critics. Smaller social gatherings were arranged for playwrights, critics, the acting company, and the subscribers.

The three plays chosen for the 1989 Festival were "Dancin' to Calliope," "The Three Golden Monkeys," and "Fall into Winter."

Described by the author as a "dark farce," "Dancin' to Calliope by Jack Gilhooley played July 13, 18, and 21. Two performers in a carnival sideshow plotted to assassinate a rural sheriff and then kill themselves. The comic action was madcap and the humor was off-beat and zany, but the story was strangely touching.

The second production was "Three Golden Monkeys" by Steven Turner. It involved the lives of an elderly Southern couple and their adult son as they struggled to survive in lower-middle-class Manhattan. A domestic melodrama, it was filled with family warmth, family problems, and, ultimately, family tragedy.

"Fall into Winter" wrapped up the Festival with its extremely intense three-character drama which revolved around the unusually close relationship between two brothers and the wife of the elder brother. It examined the devastating aftereffects of suicide and the complexities of family love.

FIRING LINE

National Figures Debate at Ole Miss

The sparks flew when the University of Mississippi hosted a debate on September 13, 1989, for William F. Buckley's television program "Firing Line."

This debates format pitted four leading conservatives — Buckley, Jeane Kirkpatrick, Newt Gingrich, and Jack Kemp — against four top liberals — Gary hart, John Kenneth Galbraith, Patricia Schroeder and George McGovern. The chosen topic "Resolved: Free market competitiveness is best for America" prompted some fiery argument.

The debate was broadcast live from C.M. "Tad" Smith Coliseum on the public bradcasting network. More than 5,000 attended.

Rob Waters said in analysis in the Daily Mississippian that the dbate had something for everyone — laughter, drama, sparkling repartee and sometimes an inspirational message.

Debators discussed numerous topics such as free trade as it related to worldwide economic competition, the state of the nation under Carter versus its condition after Reagan, and projects such as housing and FDA.

The night's debate consisted of a high level of intensity, with each team's arguments punctuated with jabs at their opponents.

All the panelists agreed on the need to draw the line where government intervention should begin — and end.

After Buckley's closing remarks, the more than 5,000 member audience responded with a standing ovation.

Following the event the public was able to attend an open reception at the coliseum and were able to meet the debators and collect autographs.

In a press conference, Buckley said he might bring "Firing Line" to Ole Miss again — if invited. •

Concerts

Whether in the Grove on a warm autumn night or packed in Tad Smith Coliseum, Ole Miss students gathered to enjoy the various concerts provided by the Student Programming Board.

Although none of the concert's this year had the tickey-frenzy of last year's REM concert, the students were pleased with both the quality and quantity of bands brought in by the SPB during the fall semester.

One of the most exciting concerts on campus was the appearence of the Indigo Girls. The Grove was jam packed with students dancing to the old and new tunes of the Indigo Girls.

Another smashing concert was that of Hoodoo Gurus. The rain forced a location change from the Grove to the Coliseum, but it did not to dampen the spirits of the many students who attended.

Other Bands who enlighted students during the semester were Change of Eden, Hill Tops, and the ever-popular Male Men.

Speakers

Throughout the year, the Ole Miss campus was buzzing with many speakers and not all were politicians.

"Crazy" Joe Clark, the former principal of the trouble-plagued Eastside High School in Patterson, New Jersey visited on Oct. 2.

Clark spoke of his trial and triumphs at the high school beginning with his expulsion of 300 problem causing during his first week on the job.

It was because of actions like this that Clark gained national attention and inspired the creation of the biographical movie "Lean on Me."

On November 1, Howell Raines, the Washington editor of "The New York Times," told how journalism in Washington differed from what is portrayed on television. He compared television's depiction of journalists covering Washington with real day-to-day occurences.

Helen Thomas,the White House Bureau Chief for United Press International enlightened students on November 8.

Thomas, a self-confessed women's libber, is the first woman to become an officer of National Press Club, president of the White House Correspondents Association, a member of the Gridiron Club and a member of Sigma Delta Chi.

9-911...FIRE!!

Billy Joel's "We Didn't Start the Fire" took on a completely different meaning for the 750 residents of Crosby

Pop star Billy Joel's reference to Ole Miss in his single We Didn't Start the Fire was caused by the racial fires in the '60s, but it reminded residents of Crosby Hall of the fire that caused them to become "homeless" for five days.

Weeks before Billy Joel's song hit number one, many Crosby residents were awakened by fire alarms and the sirens of the Oxford Fire Department.

The 376-room dorm was quickly evacuated, and the fire, which began in room 506, caused extensive damage.

Athough no one was injured in the fire, two residents who slept through the alarm had to be rescued from their fifth floor rooms by firemen.

The fire itself was contained to one room; however, many floors received extensive smoke and water damage, forcing the residents of Crosby to move elsewhere.

Some of Crosby's "homeless" found temporary homes through the University Department of Housing which arranged for students to stay in other University residence halls.

Most students chose to stay with friends off-campus or in sorority houses, while some students opted to stay at local hotels.

The fire was determined to have been the result of a short in an electrical appliance which had been stored under a bed.

Marcie Brooks, a resident of Crosby, later bought 96 T-shirts with the title of Billy Joel's song We didn't start the fire and sold them to other residents of Crosby Hall.

Brooks said the back of the shirts show a piece of a resident's stationery that is bruned around the edges along with the Billy Joel song title.

Even though the sale of the shirts was not authorized by the housing department, Brooks said the T-shirt sales were only done as a joke to all the hassle Crosby residents had to endure after the fire. •

HOMECOMING

Activities Add to Homecoming Excitement

Homecominng 1989 was a week packed with activities that ended with a classic Southeastern Conference match-up between the Rebels and the Vanderbilt Commodores.

The Student Programming Board kicked off the week with the Senior Class Barbeque and entertainment by Trowbridge and Harrington and The Digs.

Twenty teams participated in Tee-Off Tuesday, a golf tournament at the University Golf Course, and Wacky Olympics on Wednesday saw students competing in games such as the banana eating event.

Wednesday night the Grove played host for the Rockafellas and a new form of entertainment, Karayoke, in which the participants actually sing to songs with background music.

Shrimp and the music of Chris Gill was enjoyed by over 700 people at noon Thursday. Later than night, Rebel fans gathered for the annual homecoming parade from Four Corners to the Square.

For those interested in the arts, the University theatre and orchestra teamed together to produce the homecoming musical, "Sweet Charity." And the art department sponsored the annual alumni art exhibit.

By Saturday the campus had come alive with various reunions including the Delta Gamma pledge class of 1969 and alumni band members and cheerleaders.

After the football players traditional walk through the Grove, fans headed to the stadium for pre-game activities which included the induction of new members into the Alumni Hall of Fame.

At halftime the homecoming maids were presented by the M Club and ASB President John Ates escorted Homecoming Queen Margaret Pryor who was crowned by Chancellor Turner.

The Rebels came back out after halftime to defeat the Commodores 24-16 to make a perfect finish to the week-long festivities.

Elections

Elections won by creativity

For a newcomer to Ole Miss, elections are something which must be experienced to be understood. Rarely does one win because of simple political strategies, for to achieve success one must be creative.

A person running for office must first choose the perfect manager to overseee his campaign. The manager must be one who can insure that everyone on campus — especially Greeks — is aware of the candidate, the office he or she seeks, and the goals the canidate plans to pursue.

Notices must be designed perfectly and circulated in every legal place on campus, and nametages should be given to every visible soul.

After taking care of routine campaign procedures and making sure all election rules and regulations are being strictly followed, the campaigner treads to all the Greek houses and dormitories to solicit support. And for those elections which allow song groups, the manager must ensure that the singers are talented and attractive, and that the the song is catchy and interesting.

Besides the standard ads in The Daily Mississippian candidates must convince their friends to give free advertisements — shoe polishing car windows with the name(s) of candidates.

Even though the legality is questioned, some candidates have telephone committees who call people and remind them to vote, urging them to remember to vote for Joe Bloe or Susie Bow.

Meanwhile, the candidate must be seen at all the "right" places with all the "right" people wearing a wonderful "I-hope-you-vote-for-me" smile.

When the big day finally arrives, the candidate must have supporters recruited to hold signs at each voting location during the times the polls are open. Also, supporters are needed to ride around in shoe polished cars making noise, blowing horns, and giving free rides to class (stopping at the nearest poll first, of course) to encourage voters.

To some not acquainted with the Ole Miss style of campaigns, elections may seem rather odd. However, to those familiar to the system, it is all routine and necessary to win.

Elections Fill Both Semesters

Both the fall and spring semesters at Ole Miss are filled with elections.

The first election of each year is the election of 52 campus senators who are elected to represent the student population.

One of the most exciting elections is that of the homecoming queen. Homecoming maids, however, are selected by the M Club.

The final fall election gives students the opportunity to honor the most popular man and woman with the titles of Colonel Rebel and Miss Ole Miss.

Ten campus favorites, which are featured in the yearbook, are also elected at this time.

Shortly after the beginning of second semester, campaigns again begin to take shape for the student government offices — president, vice president, treasurer, secretary, judicial chair, Student Programming Board director, editor of the newspaper, and editor of the yearbook.

Tailgating

Rebel fans enjoy tailgating ritual before home games

Rebel fans from all over the South travel to Oxford every fall to take part in a zestful ritual - the tailgating before home games.

To some, this experience is cherished far more than the actual football game itself. The day begins for Rebel fans with an early arrival in the Grove to set up picnic tables for the food and drinks.

Tailgating in the Grove has become a favorite pastime at Ole Miss. Whether the table is arrayed in silver dinnerware or simply with paper plates, the only thing everyone has in mind is having a good time.

While everyone anxiously awaits the football team's traditional march through the Grove, families have an opportunity to talk with old friends or to make new ones. Even the youngest of Rebel fans enjoy the moment, and some hope one day to make that march themselves.

The atmosphere in the Grove is one of excitement. With the children playing happily, and the alumni getting caught up in the days of yesterday, the picture seems very close to perfection.

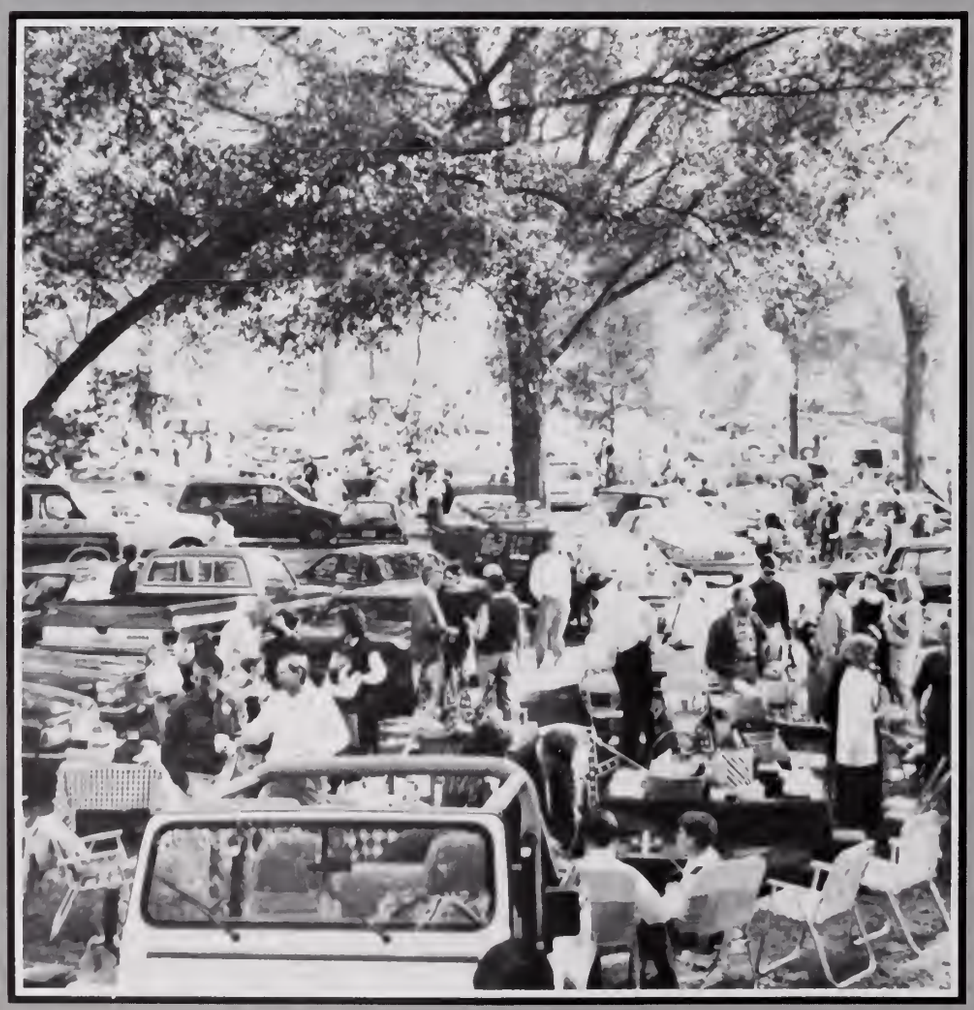

No one wants the day to come to an end, but when it does, they leave knowing that sometime soon they will have another chance to take part in this Ole Miss tradition. •

Night Life

Oxford caters to Ole Miss students

The night life in Oxford seems to be exclusively for Ole Miss students, for businesses cater to them.

Bars are a big favorite with most of the university students. There they have the opportunity to mix and mingle with friends and meeting new people. Often dates for the big campus functions are found here

Some of Oxford's finest drinking establishments are Forresters, The Gin, Oxford Alley, Off the Wall, and Syd & Harry's. At these bars, good music, great food and fun times go hand in hand.

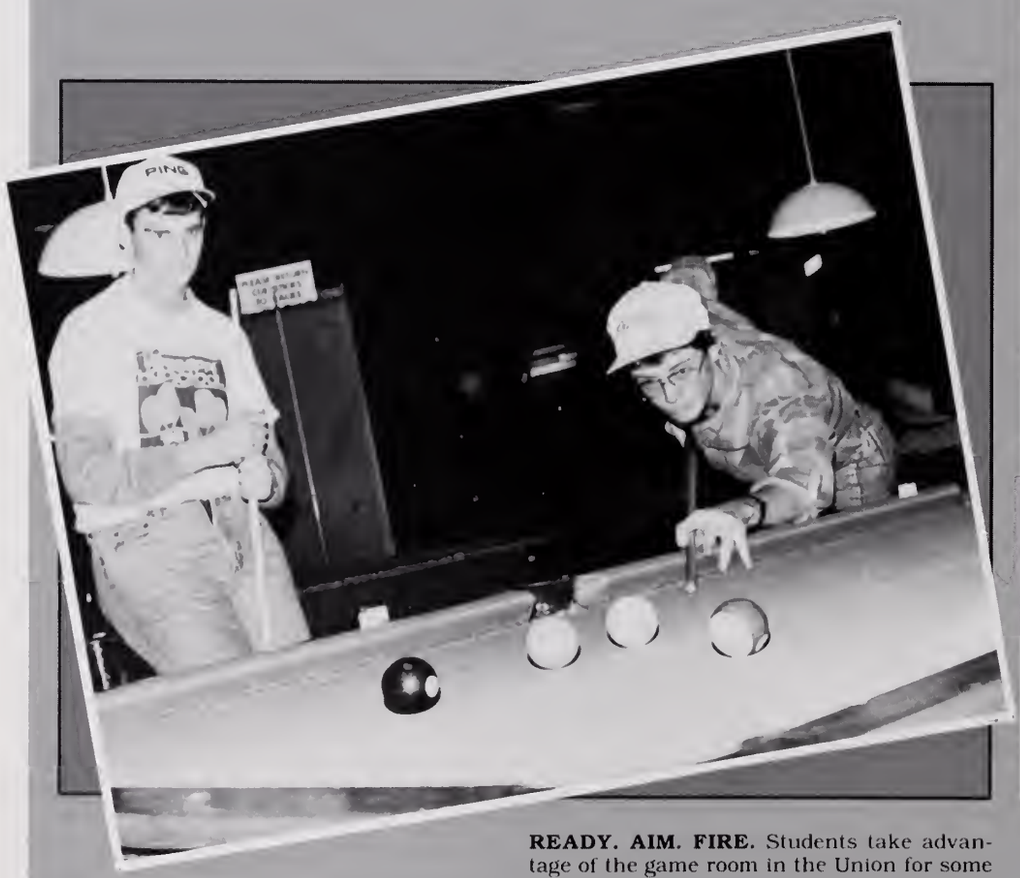

Whether one is are out to have a few drinks or to just dance the night away, the atmosphere is electric and the action is hot.

An alternative to the bar scene is a night at the movies or, better yet, a trip to the Hoka Theatre for a piece of their famous cheesecake or hot fudge pie. The laid back atmosphere the Hoka almosts guarantees a good time.

Of course, night life at Ole Miss would not be complete without mentioning those wild fraternity parties or parties at Oxford Square Apartments.

For those who just want to relax and have a calm night of fun, nights are often spent bowling, watching movies in the dorm, or just lounging around in rooms of friends. •

Pageants

Students compete for titles in various campus pageants

From the Miss University pageant to the Houseboys pageant, Ole Miss has a pageant to offer everyone.

The Miss University Pageant is a preliminary to the Miss America pageant. The winner of the 1989 pageant was Sherry Lynn Bowles.

A sophomore from Lambert, Sherry is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

First runnerup was Candy Carlisle, a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority and a sophomore education major from Brandon.

In the Parade of Beauties pageant, senior Kelly Shoemake was crowned Most Beautiful before a sold out crowd at Fulton Chapel.

From the field of 82 contestants, the following were chosen as Top Ten: Kristi Addis sponsored by Kappa Delta; Sherry Bowles, Kappa Alpha; Candy Carlisle, Alpha Omicron Pi; Louise Hooker, Phi Delta Theta; Rhonda Jones, Sigma Nu; Robin King, Modeling Board; Angela McGlowan, Phi Beta Sigma; Jeanie Rave, Society of Professional Journalists; Juanita Turnipseed, University Bands and Susie Warren, Kappa Delta.

The Best Dressed title was captured by Beth Howell. Beth is a junior pharmacy major from Clinton. The University's Most Beautiful in 1987, she was sponsored by her sorority Delta Gamma.

In one the most comical pageants, Alpha Omicron Pi's houseboy Jeff "Dixie Rogers" Palmer stole the show in the 1989 Houseboys Pageant, the Panhellenic annual fundraiser for the United Way.

On the Move

University Marching Band is in constant motion throughout the year

The three words that best characterize the Ole Miss Rebel band is "on the move." Whether it is the spring European tour or dodging cups thrown by spirited Rebel football fans, the band is in constant motion.

The year for band members starts in middle August with summer band camp when practices start at 9 am and end at 8 pm. With temperatures in the upper 90s, members perfect marching skills, music for games, and the season's opening show.

After classes start, the band gets a "break" with two hour practices, four days a week. However, many sections, such as the flags and percussion, often have extra rehearsals to obtain that level of excellence expected of the "Pride of the South."

When the game day finally arrives, the band begins the off with early Saturday morning marching practice. And, for some players, marching the next morning isn't exactly a favorite after the traditional Friday Night Frat Row parties.

Next comes the pep rally in the Grove when the team walks through; then it's back to the band hall for the march to the stadium for the pre-game and halftime shows.

The band also travels with the team to "home" Jackson games, and in the past three years, they have also been to New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Knoxville, and Memphis.

The year continues even after th football season is over with th band, twirlers, and Rebelettes pe forming at all home men's and wom en's basketball games.

Despite the hard work and work band members say the feeling the get from seeing the crowd standin swaying to "From Dixie With Love or clapping to "Dixie" is worth it all

Artist Series

The University of Mississippi offers top-quality performances to the university community through the 1989-90 Artist Series.

Four performances, ranging from a one-man drama to a full-fledged orchestra, took the spotlight on the Fulton Chapel stage in the ever-popular series.

The first performance featured New york actor Jerry Rockwood in "Edgar Allan Poe: A Condition of Shadow." The play developed from Poe's mystery tales, poetry and personal letters to reveal the conflicts of the writer's personality and tragic life.

The famed Louisville Orchestra, under the direction of Laurence Leighton Smith, appeared Nov.6. The orchestra celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1986 and is recognized for its tradition of commissioning, recording and performing modern music.

On Nov. 29 the Artist Series offered the Boston Camerata. Under the direction of music director Joel Cohen, the ensemble of singers and instrumentalists presented a program featuring music from the Middle Ages, Renaissance and early Baroque period.

The season closed with the Borodin Trio on March 28. Since its founding in 1976 the piano trio, comprised of Soviet emigres, has garnered quite a following. Considered by many to be a sizable force in Western chamber music, they are hailed for bringing a Russian intensity to their performances.

The holiday season brings special memories

CHRISTMAS — what a season! Students suddenly find that their spare time is consumed and their things-to-do list just keeps getting longer and longer.

Besides the pressure of finals approaching, the perfect gifts must be found for that "special someone", your big or little brother or sister, your best friend, and the list goes on and on.

Campus gets caught up in the holiday spirit with Christmas concerts, the lighting of the official Christmas tree by the Chancellor, and of course the Christmas parties.

By the time students take their finals and go home, they are weary and tired from all of the holiday activities. However, when they get home, they find that Christmas with the family is just about to begin.

Changing Directions

Ole Miss moves into 1990 many changes

With each year a certain amount of changes must take place. However, it seems that Ole Miss has had more of its usual amount of change this year.

The year started off with the University recording its highest enrollment in history with more than 10,000 students. The high enrollment also carried over into the spring semester with 9,777, the largest spring enrollment ever.

The campus also received a facelift in many areas. Many buildings were renovated, while many departments moved into new locations.

The old baseball field was converted into a parking lot. Although this did help to take some of the strain off of the parking situation, unforseen traffic congestion problems have arisen.

One of the most visible changes was the 1989 senior class gift, the addition of the gates to the mall entrance of campus.

The 1990 senior class also made a change which was well-received by the university community. The Battle M flag was used as a fundraiser to fund lighting for the Grove.

A new group on campus, Students for Environmental Awareness wasted no time in starting changes. They were able to get the elimination of the use of strofoam from the University Food Services Department.

The Greek system also saw many changes. Swaps were abolished, but "Mixers" were started. While the Beta's left campus, the Zeta's returned after an absence of three years.

NO POTHOLES Many campus roads, including Fraternity Row, finally receieved much needed repairs.

SAFE DRIVERS A.S.B. President John Ates and supporters of the Safe-Ride Shuttle saw their dream become a reality.

The 80s:

When the 80s started, many of us weren't even teenagers yet. At the time, it was hard to really see any changes. Looking back, however, many changes are evident.

Technology seemed to blast off during the 80s. How did we ever survive without "nuking" food in the microwave, screening calls on the answering machine, or watching movies on the VCR?

Even Fax machines, Sony walkmans, and car phones have made life much more comfortable, and life without them is unthinkable.

Besides the development of big screen televisions, Cable News Network offers continous news updates and the ever-popular MTV plays hit videos non-stop.

Regarding television series, night soaps had their all-time high with shows such as "Dynasty" and "Knots Landing." Who could ever forget "Dallas" and who really did shoot J.R. Ewing?

Fashion in the early 80s began with the "preppy" look with Izods and polo shirts. The had-to-have accessories were Swatch watches and leather hi-top Reeboks. Towards the end of the decade, leather jackets and mini-skirts were the hot fads.

We entertained ourselves with those challenging Rubik's cubes, Trivial Pursuit, or the new action-packed Nintendo video games.

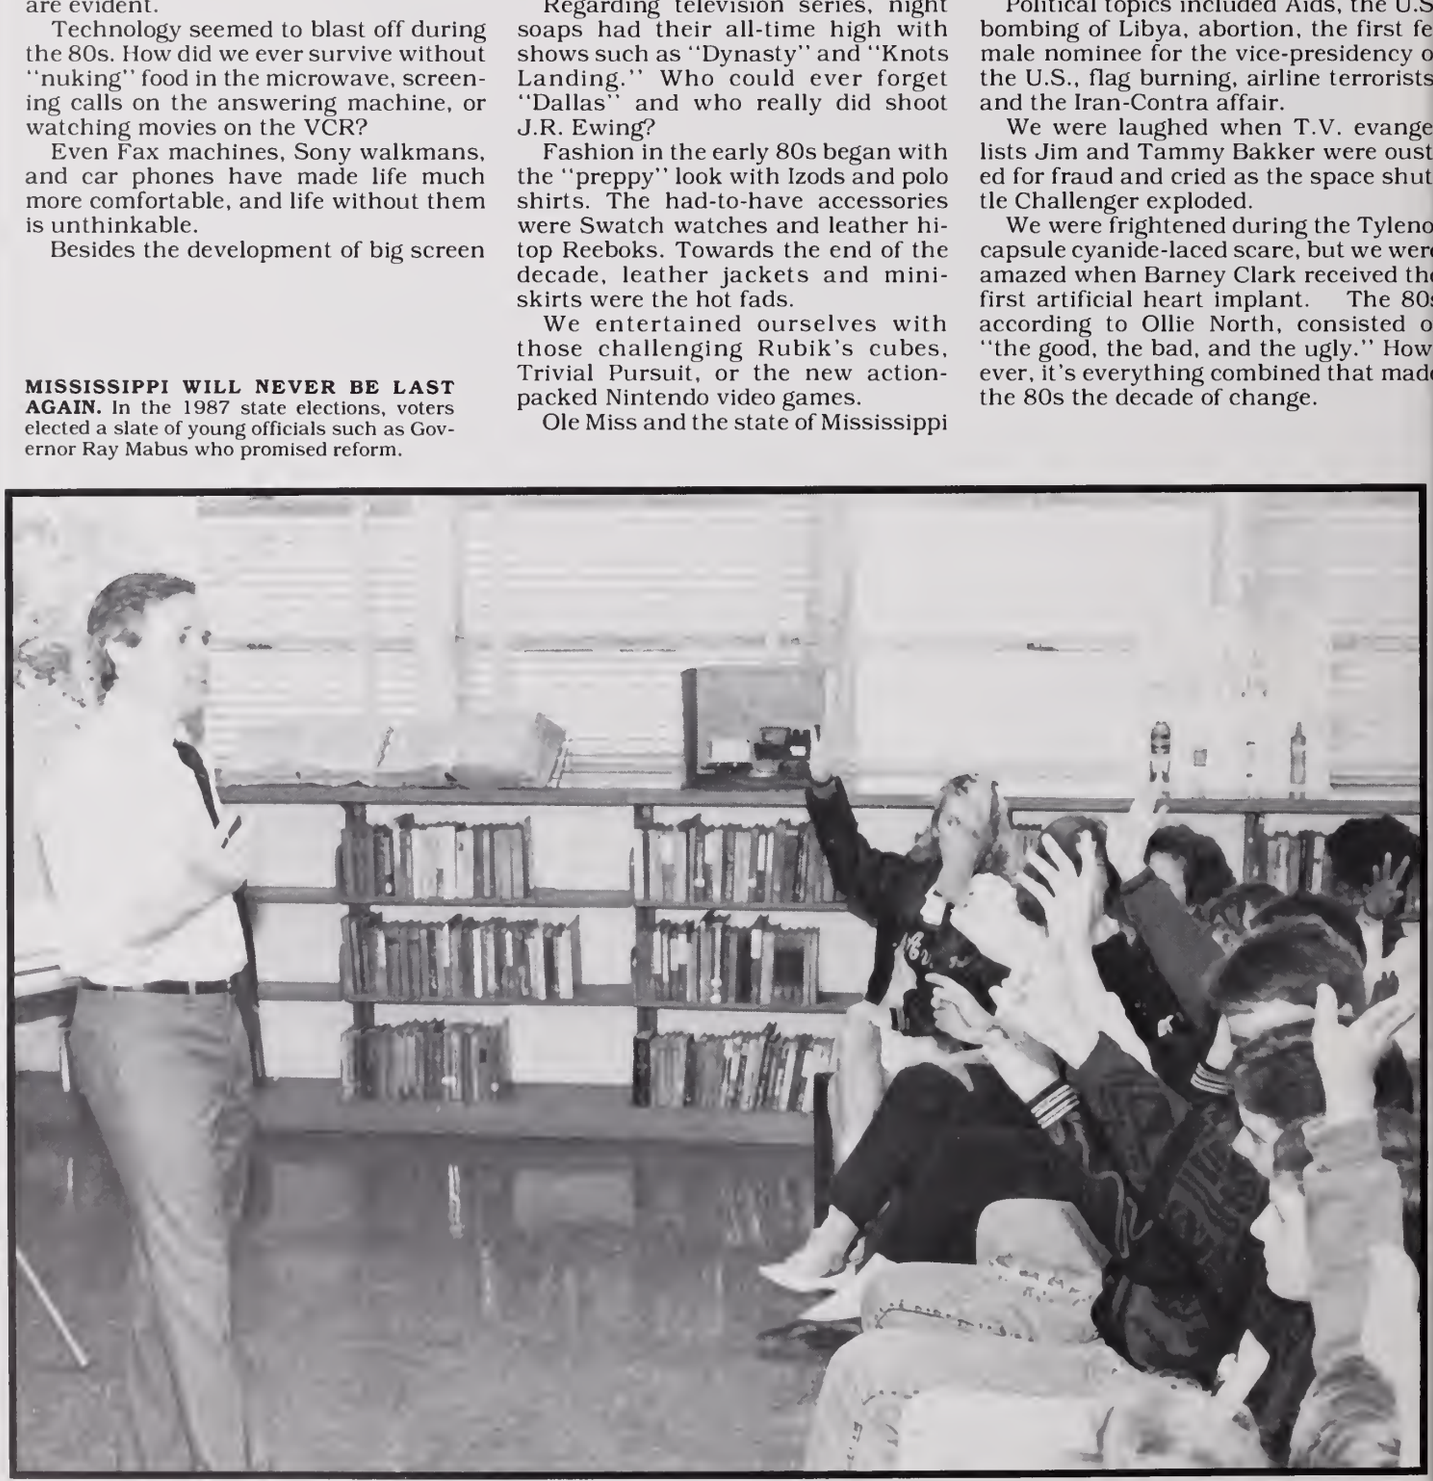

Ole Miss and the state of Mississippi were excited when Miss University Susan Akin was crowned Miss America on September 14, 1985. Susan was Ole Miss' third Miss America.

Political topics included Aids, the U.S. bombing of Libya, abortion, the first female nominee for the vice-presidency of the U.S., flag burning, airline terrorists, and the Iran-Contra affair.

We were laughed when T.V. evangelists Jim and Tammy Bakker were ousted for fraud and cried as the space shuttle Challenger exploded.

We were frightened during the Tylenol capsule cyanide-laced scare, but we were amazed when Barney Clark received the first artificial heart implant. The 80s according to Ollie North, consisted of "the good, the bad, and the ugly." However, it's everything combined that made the 80s the decade of change.

MISSISSIPPI WILL NEVER BE LAST AGAIN. In the 1987 state elections, voters elected a slate of young officials such as Governor Ray Mabus who promised reform.

The Decade of Change

Ole Miss students had the chance to rate the 80s in a survey conducted by The Daily Mississippian. Although students didn't always have the same opinions as the "professionals" who had rated the 80s, the Ole Miss study was undoubtedly more interesting.

People

For many Ole Miss freshmen, coming to college can be a lonely and scary experience during the first week.

However, during that week whether it be in classes or Rush, they will meet many new people. They learn that the Ole Miss student body is a diverse one with jocks, intellectuals, party animals, goobs and Greeks, to name just a few.

For some reason a persons joins with a certain group of friends who enjoy spending time together

When these friends are awaken a three a.m., they don't get angry even if its only to hear about another friend's great date.

These friends become the family that replaces the one at home. They are consulted for advice during the time of need and sought after for fun times

Your Ole Miss experience is actually your friends, for Ole Miss isn't the buildings — it is the people.

Many friends for life are formed here because even if you go your separate ways after graduation, you'll always have your Ole Miss memories to bind you.

J. Crew photographers capture Oxford

Fall was in the air. At least it was on the afternoon of February 8 near the College Hill community where J. Crew models were photographed wearing the company's latest styles.

Two male models, Matthew Barney and Mark Mathlson, and one famale, Marie Claude, posed in a variety of set-ups using an even larger variety of props to show off the popular designer-clothing catalog's fall layout.

Francis Manzi, production director said, "We do about seven or eight different set-ups per day."

The crew shot a country lunch set-up and a day on the farm. The farm was actually the Wildlife Restoration Area at Sardis Lake reservoir near the ranger's house.

"We came to the ranger's home to ask about locations, but when we got here we realized the area around the house was perfect," Manzi said, giving Pam Begley of the Oxford Chamber of Commerce credit for the location ideas.

Sheep grazing in a nearby pasture, grain stalks billowing in the fields, and geese floating on the reservoir colored the scenery, but the crew added some touches of its own.

The models, who were constantly having their hair combed and their clothing straightened, sat atop a Ford pick-up filled with hay bails, a wheelbarrow and a few crates. A bicycle was strategically placed within the camera's view; picnic baskets and J. Crew blankets were thrown in; and at one point a panting black and brow Rotweiler dog was appointed a place to stand.

The "prop" that stole the show more than any other, though, was a little boy named Joseph.

Seven-year-old Joseph Fasullo of Oxford was chosen from about 40 children to participate in the shoot. In one set-up, Joseph and Mr. Barney, ran and played in the sheep pasture, causing the animals to scatter.

"This is exciting for us; it's really a neat opportunity," said Debi Fasullo, Joseph's mother. "He's never been shy and that's one of the things they said. The thought he'd be comfortable in front of the camera."

In each of the planned set-ups, J. Crew's photographer will snap hundreds of pictures, using spontaneous combinations of models, Manzi said. Five to 10 pictures from each set-up will be selected and sent to New York for predesigned pages of the catalog.

Manzi said the crew was pleased with its Mississippi setting.

It's beautiful country, just right for what we were looking for," she said, adding that returning to the area in the future is a definite possibility.

1990 Miss Ole Miss

Kimsey O'neal

This year's Miss Ole Miss, Kimsey O'neal, a senior pharmacy student from Carthage, MS, is the first black woman ever to be elected to this position in the history of the University. Her election as Miss Ole Miss also gives the University its first black pairing of Miss Ole Miss and Colonel Rebel.

"When I first expressed interest in the race, many people warned me that a black being elected as Miss Ole Miss was not possible," Kimsey said. "My parents instilled in me a winning spirit. They alsways taught me that if you want something bad enough, anything is possible."

Kimsey truly displayed a spirit that is to be admired as she held on as a contender in what turned out to be one of the longest running elections ever taking place here at Ole Miss. Kimsey was the victor in an election that spanned three weeks and involved two runoffs.

Her election as Miss Ole Miss was heralded in newspaper throughout the South as just one of the many strides the University is taking to promote racial equality.

Kimsey, a member of the Lady Rebel basketball team and Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, remains overwhelmed and yet pleased with her position.

"I am honored to represent the University as Miss Ole Miss. My gaining the title demonstrates that we can all acheive if we make strides toward accomplishing goals," Kimsey said.

1990 Colonel Rebel

Chucky Mullins

A name that has become quite synonomous with the University during the past year has been that of injured football player and 1990 Colonel Rebel, Roy Lee "Chucky" Mullins.

A freshman red-shirt football player from Russellville, Ala., Chucky came to the University on a football scholarship. His playing career ended tragically on Oct. 28, 1989, while making a tackle against a Vanderbilt player he suffered a severe injury to the spine, resulting in complete paralysis from the shoulders down.

Immediatly after learning of the severity of the injury and the costs that would accumulate to provide Chucky with a lifetime of care, University students and concerned people throughout the South began one of the largest and far reaching fund raising efforts ever undertaken by a University.

By January, 1990, $727,000 had been raised, more than three-fourths of the $1 million the University is hoping to raise through donations, drives and pledges.

Love and emphathy for the football player, who few University students knew personally, was shown in many forms. His appointment as Colonel Rebel was made after seven qualified candidates for the position stepped down to give the honor to Chucky.

During his time at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis, Chucky is said to have received thousands of letters, and the fund raising efforts were aided by the endorsements of many professional football players and ESPN network. His biggest suprise came when Chucky was paid an unexpected visit by President George Bush.

Often the words of Chucky were spoken through his guardian, Mr. Carver Phillps, who said, "People here have been so good to us. We can't ever repay the kindess of people, especially the Ole Miss people, for what they've done for Chucky."

Ole Miss loses its "perfect gentleman"

Former chancellor dies at home

Porter Fortune

Ole Miss lost its "perfect gentleman" September 14, 1989. After a brief illness, Chancellor Emeritus Porter Lee Fortune Jr., 69, died at home.

Best known for his kindness and understanding, Fortune served as the university's chief official from January 1968 until his March 1984 retirement.

He was the university's 21st chief executive and under his guidance, four new schools were added to the university — the Schools of Dentistry, Accountancy, Health-Related Professions and the Graduate School of Library Information Science.

By the time of Fortune's retirement, the enrollment had grown by nearly 40 percent and the size of the faculty by more than 45 percent. Appropriations for the Oxford campus increased by more than $26 million during his term largely due to his personal dedication to the university.

Early in his administration, Fortune outlined his three goals for the university: imaginative teaching, research and service. He established the first long-range planning committee to set goals and priorities for the schools and departments.

Donald Vaughn, long-time public administration professor, said, "He was an exceptionally human administrator. He had the great quality of being able to listen to others and he gave great weight to faculty and student views."

Vaughn said Fortune once spoke to a graduate class saying the hardest decision he ever made was banning the Confederate flag as the official school symbol.

"He had the ability to see all sides of a question," Vaughn said. "He made an important, lasting contribution to the existence of a great institution."

Former Associated Student Body Vice President Cathy Williams said she spent more time in his office than in class.

"We always thought of him not just as a chancellor, but as a friend," Williams said.

Fortune's concerns for his students did not stop in his office. His views often conflicted with those of the Board of Trustees. Fortune received the John T. Emens National Award for Support of a Free Student Press for persuading the Board of Trustees to rescind a decision it made that would have censored The Daily Mississippian.

S. Gale Denley, manager of student media and publisher of The Daily Mississippian, said, "He was a good man. If he had any shortcomings it was that he was too good of a man to be in that position."

It was Fortune's vision to make Ole Miss "the hub of cultural activities in Mississippi" that led him to conceive the Cultural Center to preserve for future generations the gifts of the past in art, music, writing, the performing arts and science.

It was during his tenure that the Center for the Study of Southern Culture was established, as was the Sarah Isom Center for Women's Studies, the Lamar Law Center, the Turner Complex and 59 new buildings, including the Student Union and Crosby Hall.

Other innovations credited to Fortune were new programs in communicative disorders, social work and black studies; the Honors Program; the only four-year court reporting program in the United States; and the annual Chancellor's Symposium on Southern History, which was renamed in his honor in 1983.

Chancellor Gerald Turner, current chancellor, said, "We are greatly saddened by the loss of Chancellor Fortune. He provided a unique quality of leadership during a period of dramatic growth which was characterized by both challenge and opportunity."

"It has been an honor to work on the foundation he laid during his historic 16 years as Chancellor."

Reverend Larry Goodpastor, who presided over the service with the Reverend Lavelle Woodrick said that Fortune was a man who was sincere in all company.

"Fortune did the just and right things — even though they were not always the most popular or expedient things to do," Goodpastor said. "He is a legacy that will be remembered."

Governor Ray Mabus

Upon his inauguration in 1988, Ray Mabus became the 60th Governor of the State of Mississippi. He was born on October 11, 1948 in Choctaw County, Misssissippi.

Mabus attended Ackerman public schools and the University of Mississippi. He then received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship to attend Johns Hopkins University where he earned a Masters degree in government.

He then volunteered for the U.S. Navy, where he served aboard a guided missile cruiser. Afer military service, he attended and graduated magna cum laude from Harvard Law School.

Mabus then came back to Mississippi to 1980 to work on the staff of Governor William Winter where he drafted, and helped pass, the historic Education Reform Act of 1982.

Since he has taken office, Mabus has taken steps to help improve education in Mississippi, although his recent plan for educational funding through a lottery was not passed by the state's legislature.

As a result other means are being sought to enact his Mississippi's BEST (Better Education for the Success of Tomorrow).

The Mississippi Board of Trustees of the Institutions of Higher Learning was established to remove political interference from the administration of statewide higher education. The members are appointed by the Governor to twelve-year staggered terms, thus preventing any one group of political appointees from gaining control of the board.

Mississippi has eight state universities — Ole Miss, Mississippi State, Southern, Jackson State, Alcorn, Mississippi Valley, Delta State and Mississippi University for Women. With increases in both the student and the faculty enrollment, the Board of Trustees cannot do everything for everyone in higher learning. Therefore the board has established leadership roles for areas in which the state instituions concentrate.

Ole Miss currently has leadership roles in social sciences, journalism, law, foreign languages, pharmacy, community and regional planning, math, art, public affairs, letters, and physical sciences.

The function of the Board is to make decisions that will improve the institutions of higher learning. Despite the budgetary problems of the state, the Board has proved vital to the future of the state's higher education and the future of the state of Mississippi.

Board of Trustees

Fully Committed

After a brief meeting, Chancellor R. Gerald Turner walked into his office and flipped briskly through the pile of notes on his desk.

"So many messages!" he said.

Although it was quite clear that his day was filled with appointments and meetings, his mannerism showed no sign of hurry. It seemed as though he had all the time in the world.

Turner, known for his successful "Campaign for Ole Miss," is quite proud of the progress the university has made in a large number of areas since his inauguration in 1984.

"The hardest thing to do," he said, "was to push the high quality of the programs at the university so that they would gain national publicity.

"Through the opening of the acoustics center, the natural product center, the building of the super computer, and by promoting the biological field, we have been able to capture national interest."

In 1994 the university will celebrate its 150th anniversary since the legislative passed the act to open its doors, and 1998 is the 150 anniversary of that opening.

Regarding the anniversary, Turner said, "We are now in the rough stages of a fundraising effort that will begin in 1994 and culminate in a yearlong anniversary in 1998."

Also during the 90s, Turner said that he hopes the university will attain a Phi Beta Kappa chair and a doubling of the library.

"There will be some major evaluations done during the nineties," he said," especially concerning the medical center in Jackson. We will have to do some serious considerations for a whole new hospital."

When many people think of Ole Miss, they think "prejudice" or "racists" because of the various negative acts that have transpired on this campus.

Turner said that although he wishes the events had never happened he believes them to be part of the many historic activities that have enabled Ole Miss to grow.

Not long ago the university adopted as a motto "A Legacy of Achievement with Vision for Tomorrow." Turner said that the "Legacy of achievement" encompasses both the negative and the positive aspects of the university."

"We are pushing foward," he said, "and it's because of the good foundation upon which we are built." •

Making a Difference

Finance professor named Outstanding Teacher

Doctors, lawyers, pharmacists, businessmen, journalists . . . these and scores of other accomplished professionals of all fields of study pass on their knowledge and experience to students at the University of Mississippi; thus making a difference in their lives.

But few of these teachers are honored for their success.

Dr. R. Phil Malone, associate professor of finance in the school of Business was named 1988-89 Outstanding Teacher.

The Elsie M. Hood Outstanding Teacher Award, was established in 1966 to annually recognize excellence in teaching. The selection committee consists of eight former recipients, the ASB President and the Director of Alumni Affairs.

Students are asked to nominate a teacher whom they believe to be worthy of the award. Nomination letters are taken in November and December and are reviewed by the committee in the Spring.

Along with this honor, the recipient is given a plaque and a $2,000 check which is presented by Chancellor R. Gerald Turner during the Honors Day Program.

Malone, who has served on the faculty senate, believes his teaching strength lies in the strong demands he makes of all his students.

"I want our students to know what to expect in the world," he said. "It's very competitive out there. It's very refreshing when we send students out and they do well."

Lauded for excellent classroom teaching, Malone pioneered the use of microcomputers in the school by obtaining what he believes to be the first Mississippi use of microcomputers in a classroom setting.

Malone said he uses a large screen monitor to show students how to calculate internal rates of return, marginal cost of capital and other finance principles.

He said he hopes to incorporate the use of spreadsheets in his classes, especially in the introductory finance courses.

"With the microcomputers, I hope to teach students advanced spreadsheet techniques and how to do presentations," he said.

Malone said that he was somewhat surprised to receive the award since Ole Miss has so many excellent teachers.

"It's somewhat puzzling," he said. "I have a reputation of being harsh and my classes certainly aren't the most popular classes. But because I'm screened, I tend to get better students.

"It also seems unfair to just recognize one teacher, for there are a lot of good teachers.

I feel very honored by this award especially in light of the many fine professors who have received it and knowing that they have been part of the selection process."

Hands on Experience

Many departments, such as the computer science department, have resources that allow students to become familiar with their field by actual participation. Hands on experience is a vital way to ensure hiring after graduation.

Resources available for job quest

Johnny Appleseed was standing anxiously in his assigned spot in the graduation line. He knew that the Dean would soon call his name.

"Johnny Appleseed, cum laude," said the voice on the microphone.

With beads of sweat on his forehead, and tear of joy in his eyes, Johnny reached out for his hard-earned trophy.

The next day while packing the remainder of his belongings, he thought, "I've graduated. I'm finished. Now, what's next? A job? I've searched for a job but there are no jobs available for me. I'll just die if I can't get a job after all of this."

Finding a job after graduation can be a traumatic experience. Not only is it difficult to locate potential employers, but also it is difficult to talk to those who are hiring.

Twenty years ago, a diploma from college could almost guarantee that one would get hired. But now, with so many graduates the competition is stiffer, the qualifications are steeper, and because of technology, the list of potential employers is shorter.

As a result, many graduates are forced to take jobs outside of their fields or return to college to persue another degree.

What's a person to do?

The University of Mississippi offers free counseling to students about job placement. Their focus upon the student is not only immediately before and after graduation, but also during the earlier undergraduate years in the quest for self-understanding, appraisal of interests and abilities, and efforts to determine vocational objectives which are most meaningful and satisfying.

Counselors are available to assist students in obtaining interview skills and job search skills.

Even if the student has no clue to what direction he wants his life to go, counselors can help him explore the diverse fields to see which best fits his needs or desires.

Career Services and Placemnt has the responsibility to develop and maintain communication channels among students, faculty, educational administrators, educational institutions, and employers so that mutual needs and interests can be properly interpreted and implemented.

The goal of the educative process is the development of the individual in order that the potential both as an individual and as a constructive member of society may be fulfilled.

Jonny sat down on his stripped bed. "Now, why didn't I think of this earlier. I've been here four and a half years and have been clueless about what I want to do and where I will work. I hope it's not too late to talk to that Karen Peairs lady in the Lyceum about job placement."

Dealing with test anxiety

Do you find exams a test of endurance, a time of stress and fear, self-incrimination, lack of sleep, and douts about whether college is right for you? Then these suggestions may help make exam time less traumatic for you.

ATTITUDE

A. We tend to create either positive or negative feelings about ourselves through the things we think in a given situation. Be kind to yourself and treat yourself as you treat a good friend. You want to increase self-confidence, not eliminate it!

B. If you don't make that "A," it doesn't mean the end of the world, Give it your best effort. Afterwards, learn from the experience, pick yourself up, and pat yourself on the back for giving it your best shot.

C. Relaxation training can help you handle test related tension. Teach yourself to relax by taking slow, deep breaths. Tense your muscles and gradually relax and fell the tension leave.

ACTION

A. A most important rule for relieving anxiety at exam time; Never postpone completing today's assignment until another time!

B. Scheduling of study time during the semester helps eliminate cramming before exams. Set up a written schedule for reviewing and summarizing class lecture notes, textbook notes, and questions from quizzes. Allow time for meals, proper rest, and periods of relaxation.

C. To stay at our best during an exam, use these five hints:

1. Arrive at the exam early. Choose a seat with the fewest distractions. Do not sit near a friend or discuss the exam with friends. Any conversation before the exam is likely to interfere with your mental set.

2. To keep out distracting thoughts, rehearse ideas, facts, and formulas.

3. Listen carefully to directions and read all instructions before beginning.

4. Begin with the easiest questions. don't spend too much time on any one question — move on and come back to it.

5. If you feel too much tension, practice a relaxation exercise.

LISTEN AND LEARN. Classrooms such as this one in Conner Hall are often filled with eager students who tackle business problems. photo by Melvin Seid

Dr. Tonya Flesher became the first woman to serve as dean of a school at Ole Miss when the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning approved her appointment in May, 1989. She served as acting dean of the school from 1987 until her appointment.

Ole Miss Chancellor Gerald Turner said the choice of Dr. Flesher was based on the recommendation of a search committee comprised of accounting faculty, alumni and university administrators.

"Dr. Flesher exemplifies the qualities we have searched for in a dean for the School of Accountancy at Ole Miss," said Chancellor Turner. "Her successes in teaching, research and administration illustrate the type of leadership necessary for our accountancy students and faculty to prosper."

In 1984 Dr. Flesher was named the school's Outstanding Researcher and was named Teacher of the Year in the school in 1986. Her excellence in teaching was acknowledged with the prestigious Burlington Northern Foundation Faculty Achievement Award at Ole Miss in 1986.

Flesher said she hopes to continue the progress made in the past, recruit more students and promote nationally and regionally the department's reputation.

"I feel privileged to be chosen dean and plan to continue to work with the faculty, the administration and the staff to build on the strong foundation we have established for the School of Accountancy at Ole Miss," Flesher said.

Dr. Flesher is also a prolific author in the field of accountancy and has published several books. She was co-author for the book Tax Effective Methods for Taking Cash Out of the Closely Held Corporation which explores the federal Tax Reform Act of 1986. She also served as associate editor of the book Individual Income Taxes and is on the editorial board of the Journal of the American Taxation Association.

In addition to her broad teaching and research interests, Dr. Flesher serves as director of the national Tax History and Research Center based at Ole Miss.

Flesher said she has no major plans for the department even though some minor changes may be made.

"We have some of the top students on campus and the faculty is excellent," she said. "I just hope to continue the progress."

Dr. Flesher earned her doctorate in accounting at Ole Miss, her master's degree at Appalachian State University in Boone, North Carolina, and her bachelor's degree at Ball State University in Muncie, Indiana. She also received 17 weeks of Internal Revenue Service Tax Training and is a certified public accountant in Mississippi and North Carolina.

Since 1917 the School of Business Administration has been developing a program to prepare students to deal with the ever changing field of business. nd with the increasing problems in the business orld as it relates to social and economic movements, ne Ole Miss school is producing graduates to unerstand and cope with the contemporary problems.

A new feature the school implemented this year to ontinue this commitment to excellence is the Hearin-ess Distinguished Lecture Series. The Series, es-ablished by Bob Hearin, chairman of the board of the lississippi Valley Gas Company, and Leon Hess, hairman and chief executive officer of the Amerada ess Corporation, was designed to bring nationally rominent scholars and eminent business leaders to lississippi to lecture on topics of critical importance to the future of Mississippi and the nation.

Thirteen Ole Miss freshmen planning to pursue a career in business were named this fall as the first recipients of Hearin-Hess Scholarships in the School of Business Administration.

The recipients were chosen on the basis of superior academic records in high school, strong ACT scores and leadership ability. They will receive $12,000 for four years of study at Ole Miss.

Chancellor Gerald Turner said that he was very impressed with the academic and leadership credentials of the first recipients of the scholarship.

Turner said, "The Hearin-Hess Scholarships reflect our commitment to business education by offering nationally competitive scholarships to some of the brightest young minds in the country."

The University of Mississippi continues to teach students to be teachers but it doesn't stop there. It continues to provide the opportunity for further education for those already in the classroom — and not always with the use of textbooks.

During an excavating field trip this past year in central Mississippi, 40 junior high school teachers attending a National Science Foundation Institute at the University of Mississippi discovered some 40 million-year-old whale bones, which may be part of an extremely rare archaeological find.

Dr. Bill Reynolds, Ole Miss associate professor of geology and geological engineering, said officials from the Philadelphia Academy of Science are conducting an investigation to determine if a full skeleton is embedded in the site at Cynthia, a Hinds County community near Jackson.

If a complete skeleton could be uncovered at the aggregate mining site, it would be only the second one in the world, Reynolds said.

Reynolds said he knew some bones had been discovered in the mine by workers when he sent the teachers on the two-day field trip although he had no idea what they would find.

"It's quite a bonaza," he said. "The bones — eight vertebrate pieces and 12 various rib and flipper bones — have been determined to be those of a basilosaurus cetoides, an extinct carnivorous whale. The mammal had a snout like a crocodile and a wicked set of teeth."

Dr. Jean Shaw, co-director of the institute, said the discovery should serve as a valuable educational tool for the teachers when they return to the classroom.

"It will show students that new and interesting aspects of science can be uncovered in Mississippi," she said.

The University of Mississippi has been honored with membership in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's ational Space Grant College and ellowship Program, heralding a lose working relationship in both ducation and research activites.

Dr. Allie Smith, dean of the chool of Engineering said, "There re land grant colleges and sea rant colleges, and now there are pace grant institutions.

"This new affiliation will put us n the cutting edge of space-elated research and provide su-erior fellowships and scholar-hips for our students," he said.

As a new affiliate of the Ala-ama Space Grant Consortium of ASA, Ole Miss joins a select group of other regional universities, space-related industries and the Alabama Space and Rocket Center in the new collaboration.

Objectives of the consortium, which will be headquartered at the University of Alabama in Huntsville, are:

- To participate in a national network of universities with capabilities in aeronautics, space and related fields under the auspices of NASA.
- To encourage cooperative space-related programs between universities, industries, federal, state and local governments.
- To encourage interdisciplinary training, research and public service programs related to aerospace.
- To recruit and train professionals for career in acrospace science, technology and allied fields.
- To promote a strong science, mathematics and technology educational basc from elementary schools to the university level.

These activities will include a fellowship program for univcrsity students; a regional aerospace information network; funds to support professors in aerospace-related projects; seminars and conferences to promote aerospace studies from the high school to the university level; support for innovative teaching, service and research projects; a summer faculty fellowship program and a NASA-University exchange program to foster cooperation and sponsor projects.

Space Grant activities at Ole Miss will primarily involve engineering and the sciences but also may include such fields as economics, sociology, international affairs, public administration and other space-related fields.

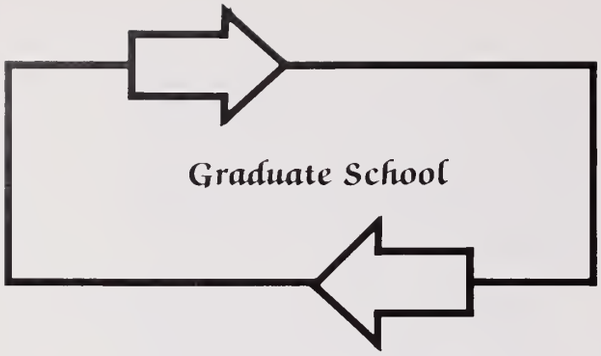

Among the reasons cited for selecting Ole Miss were the presence of strong programs in structural dynamics, aerospace heat transfer, materials science, processing of composite materials for spacecraft, computatuional fluid dynamics, electromagetic field theory, robotics, and remote sensing.

"Our facu ty has more than 50 years experience in the aerospace industry," said Dean Smith, "and this now includes an undergraduate degree path in astronautical engineering."

Ole Miss has also been named by the State College Board as having exclusive responsibility for offering graduate and undergraduate engineering serfices at the NASA Advanced Solid Rocket Motor Plant, which will be built in Tishomingo County.

Getting Exposed

Program implemented to recruit black graduates

A new program at Ole Miss offers the opportunity for representatives of Southern historically black colleges and universities to gain preliminary exposure to the various challenges of graduate school.

The Educational Opportunities Program, an intense summer program implemented last summer, is designed to familiarize black students who have completed their junior year of college and plan to attend graduate school.

Participants in the program are enrolled in three specially-designed seminars and one graduate course in their field of study.

The program is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education. Students selected for the program must be recommended by their respective institutions and meet the minimum requirements for entrance: a 3.0 grade point average and a sincere interest in pursuing graduate study.

The students expenses were paid, and they received a stipend equivalent to a summer job a minimum wage.

Fox said, "These students were well-read, socially conscious and totally unihibited when it came to expressing their views and opinions about how the program is operating. Their input and influence has resulted in some changes in the original format, alterations which we feel have greatly improved the program's effectiveness."

The 10 week-program was divided into two summer school segments. The daily schedule consisted of two one and one half hour each day, one in the morning and another in the afternoon.

Fox said, "Our objective is to give these academically-talented juniors information and skills which we hope they will use in their senior year as they prepare for graduate school.

"In graduate studies orientation, they are taught how to obtain information about graduate programs and institiutions, how to prepare an effective application, and availability of scholarships, fellowships, and assistantships and how to apply for them."

The students attended a week-long computer skills workshop and a library orientation with a professional stall member who acquainted them with periodical and journal collections, information retreival systems, and reference collections relevant to graduate study.

Fox said he hopes that all the students will benefit from the program and attend graduate school once they complete their undergraduate degree requirements.

"We would like for them to consider returning to the university, but if they decide to go elsewhere to further their education, they will at least have the skills they received here to help them." Fox said.

A new face

University selected new dean

David E. Shipley of Columbia, S.C. has been selected as the new dean of the The University of Mississippi School of Law after a national search.

Shipley's appointment was approved by the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning. He will assume his new post on July 1, to fill the vacancy created when former Dean Thomas A. Edmonds resigned in Jaunary 1989.

A noted lecturer and author, 39-year-old Shipley served as professor and associated dean for administration at the University of South Carolina School of Law.

In 1975 the Urbana, Illinois, native received a juris doctor degree from The University of Chicago Law School, where he served as executive editor of The University of Chicago Law Review. While a student, he was also a research assistant for renowned professor Stanley Kaplan. He holds a bachelor of arts degree with highest honors in American history from Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio.

Chancellor Gerald Turner said Shipley was picked from among some highly qualified candidates.

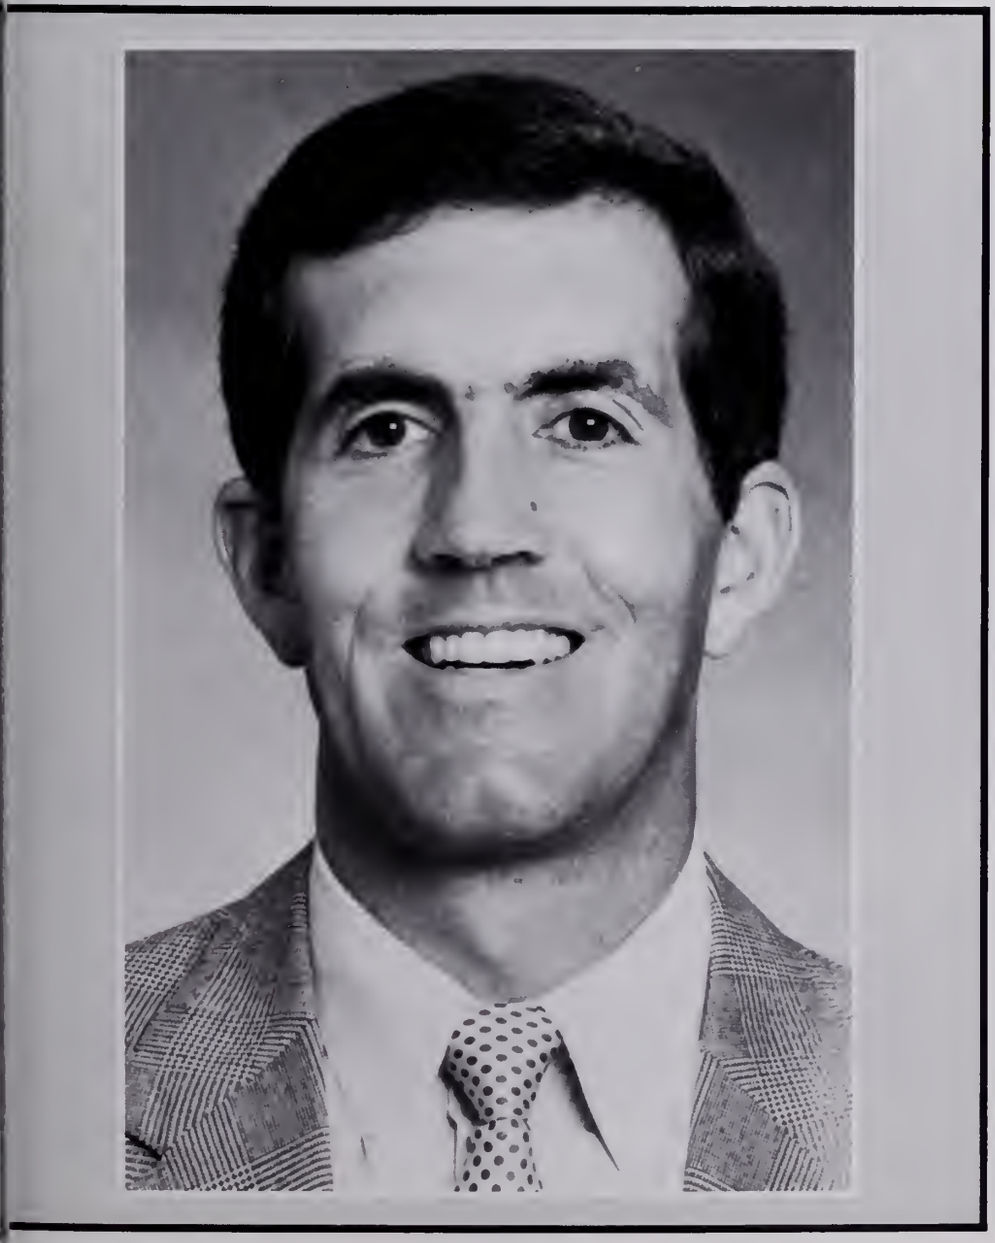

"We feel very fortunate to have had the opportunity to choose from among some extremely strong finalists," Turner said. "Shipley has an excellent background in both undergraudate and legal education. He has the necessary administrative experience and has received significant recognition in his field. Throughout the selection process, he gained strong support from the administration, as well as the law school faculty, staff and students."

Shipley began his teaching career in 1977 as a visiting assistant professor at The University of South Carolina School of Law, attaining full professor status there in 1985. In the interim, he served visiting professorships at The Ohio State University College of Law and The College of William and Mary at the Marshall Wythe School of Law.

He has taught courses in copyright or intellectual property, civil procedure, administrative law, legal and equitable remedies, and domestic relations.

A noted authority on copyright law, Shipley is presently co-authouring a copyright case book, which he expects to be published in 1991. He has addressed the subject of copyright in presentations at the American Bar Association's annual convention, at meetings of the South Carolina Bar and at vaious continuing legal education seminars and workshops.

He is currently serving his fourth term as a member of the Carolina Patent, Trademark and Copyright Law Association's Board of Managers.

Students of Robert Tettleton think it's a hoot when he uses his collection of owls as a teaching aid in his art classes.

It's not unusual for Tettleton to bring two or three owls to class to show different art techniques. The diverse collection, ranging from leaded crystal to mass-produced souvenir stand, enables him to show the many different interpretations artists and designers can have with one subject.

Tettleton, who has been collecting miniature owl figurines for more than 20 years, said the ever-growing collection — 130 at the last count — has become part of his lectures. Whether he's teaching introductory courses in art design or art education, his fine feathered friends have proved invaluable.

Tettleton said, "Some of the owls are stylized; one is naturalistic and others are realistic or abstract."

The objects, collected from throughout the U.S. and around the world, also reflect the cultural differences of their creators. It's easy to spot the souvenir from Mexico and to detect which birds have an Oriental influence.

Tettleton, who joined the Ole Miss faculty in 1965, began his collection after receiving an owl as a gift from a friend.

His office, located near the Fine Arts Gallery in Bryant Hall, is a sight to behold. Every inch of wall space is covered with artworks, and what space remains on his already filled bookshelves provides a roost for one of his owls.

A close inspection of his office's interior reveals that many of his bookmarks are adorned with owls and that owl bookends keep some of the books in place on overcrowded shelves.

However the majority of his owl collection is three-deminsional and measures less than a half-inch tall.

"I try to keep the size down," he explained, "because they take up less space."

Regardless of the size, each owl comes complete with its own story. Whether it's a painted rock perched on a piece of pine bark given to him by a former student or a solemn owl carved from ironwood that was a gift from his son, Tettleton said the collection has provided him much enjoyment in and out of the classroom.

HOOT HOOT! Robert Tettleton talks about a few pieces in his owl collection which consists of more than 100 owls.

Professor finds heroic counterpart in media

They proliferate on TV as both drama heroes and sitcom wiseguys. They are police officers, lawyers and doctors. These three professions seem to dominate the television, movies and books.

How about a pharmacist for a change?

It took a long, hard, historical search for a University of Mississippi pharmacy professor to find a heroic counterpart in the media. He turned up in "County Seat," a 1938 CBS radio program.

In that first program, pharmacist Will Hackett was described as a "no ordinary druggist who is shrewd, understanding, sometimes an inscrutable fellow, with a genius for getting tangled up in the lives of men who cross his path."

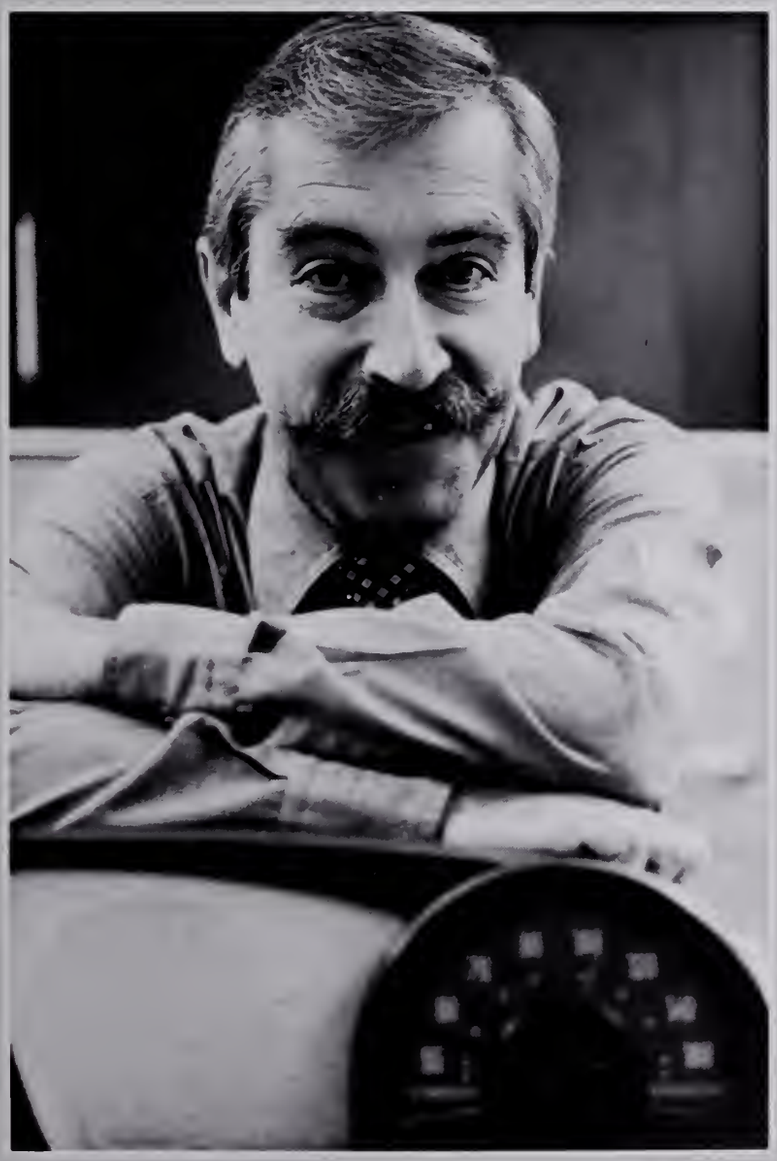

Dr. Mickey Smith, Barnard Distinguished Professor of Health Care Administration has collected over 700 radio shows like "The Lone Ranger," "Fibber McGee and Molly," and "The Shadow."

Smith's collection has gravitated toward his profession since his great interest in life has been his pharmacy and health care administration career. His dedication to it is evident in his international reputation as a scholar, a researcher, a teacher, and a innovator.

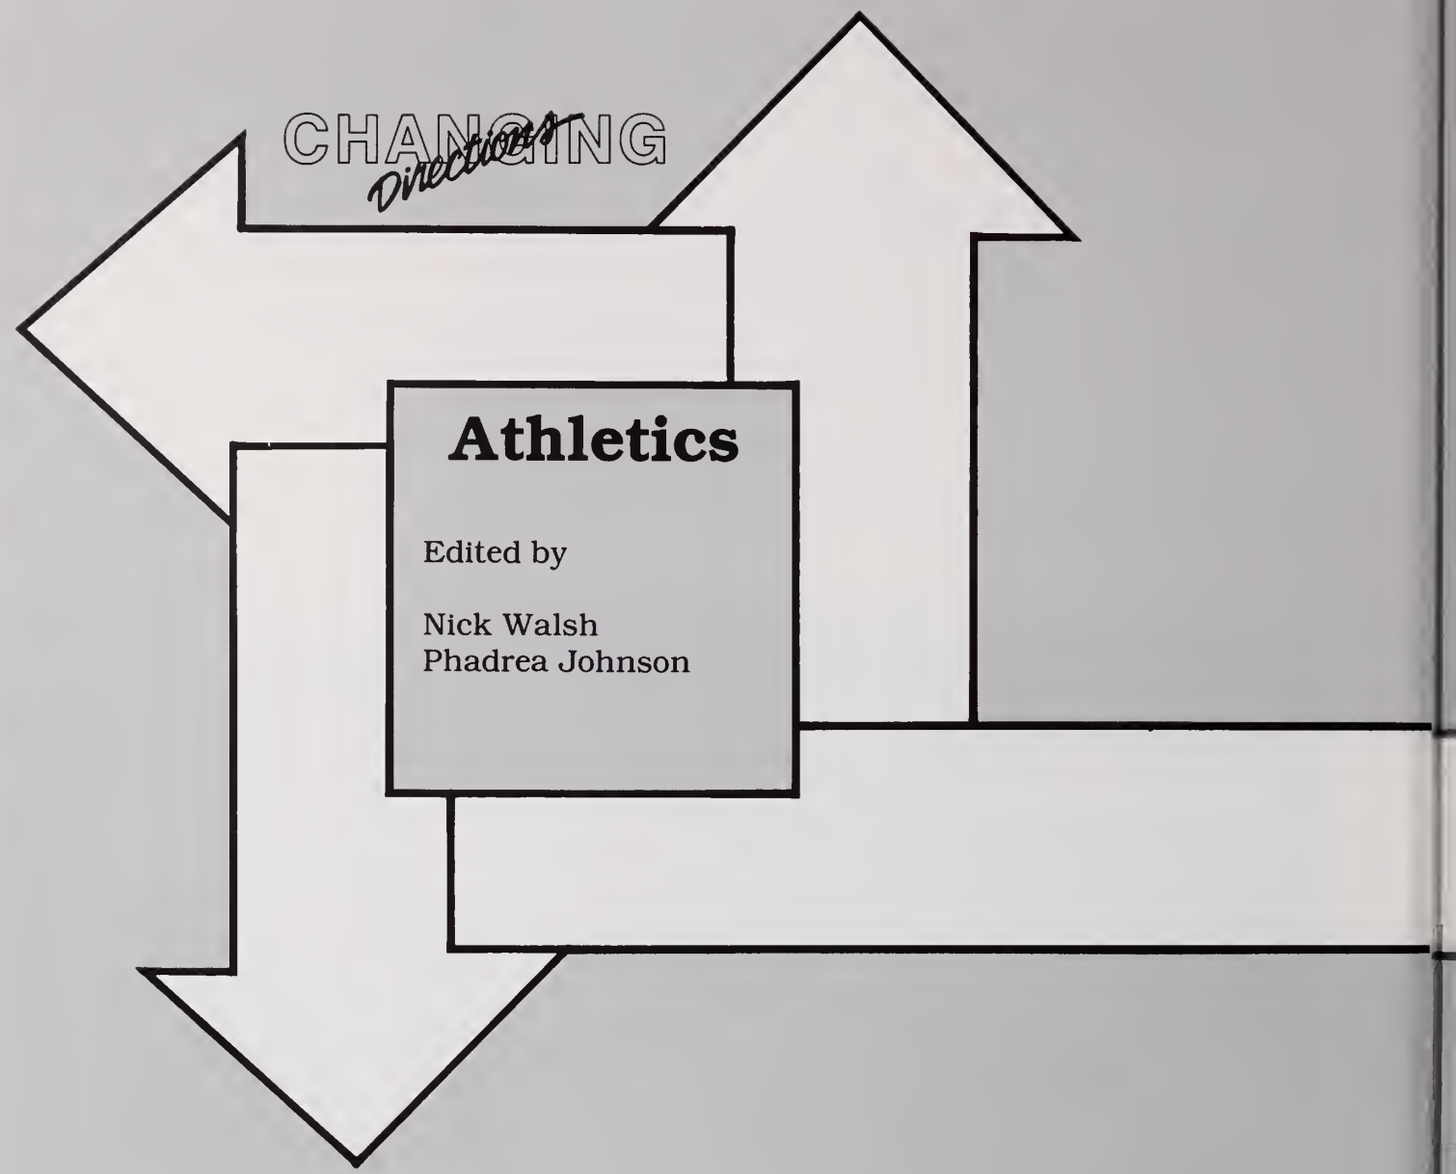

Smith first collected references to pharmacy on radio and produced a cassette tape of their reflections as part of a pharmacy history project which is now part of the University's pharmaceutical museum.

His research continued with a journal article on Milton Geiger, the pharmacist-writer who produced the scripts. However Geiger's expertise when the final scripts were produced, indicating that the editor probably figured the audience had little interest in chemical intricacies short of nitroglycerine.

Smith hopes that "County Seat" will be incorporated into the University Museum especially since he has found what may be the only existing episode in the series.

The Battle M

Senior Class adopts new flag

If anyone's wondered about the new flag that was waved in the stands at the games, it was the creation of the senior class — designed not only to lift school spirit, but to raise money as well.

The senior class began selling the new flags at the Ole Miss-Georgia game to raise money to light the grove. The class has over 800 flags.

Elizabeth Noblin, senior class president, said that the class wanted to do something different and designing a flag had never been done before.

"Several people on the senior committee put their heads together and came up with a sketch, and then we got an artist from Jackson to perfect it," Noblin said.

The "Rebel M" as it has been named is a flag that is distinctly Ole Miss — 1990, said Noblin.

"Sometimes people refer to it as the 'Battle M,' saying that the Rebels are going to battle," she said.

Jim Eicknolz, class vice-president, said the committee decided that putting electric lighting in The Grove would be the most beneficial project the class could undertake and selling a new flag wasn't any one person's idea.

"We thought it (lights) would be good for ball games and make things a lot safer for people walking through at night," he said. "We were not trying to replace the old flag, but this gave people an option."

Pat Scanlon, a senior class officer said, "If the flag goes over well, and if the administration wants to adopt it, we're more than willing to let them."

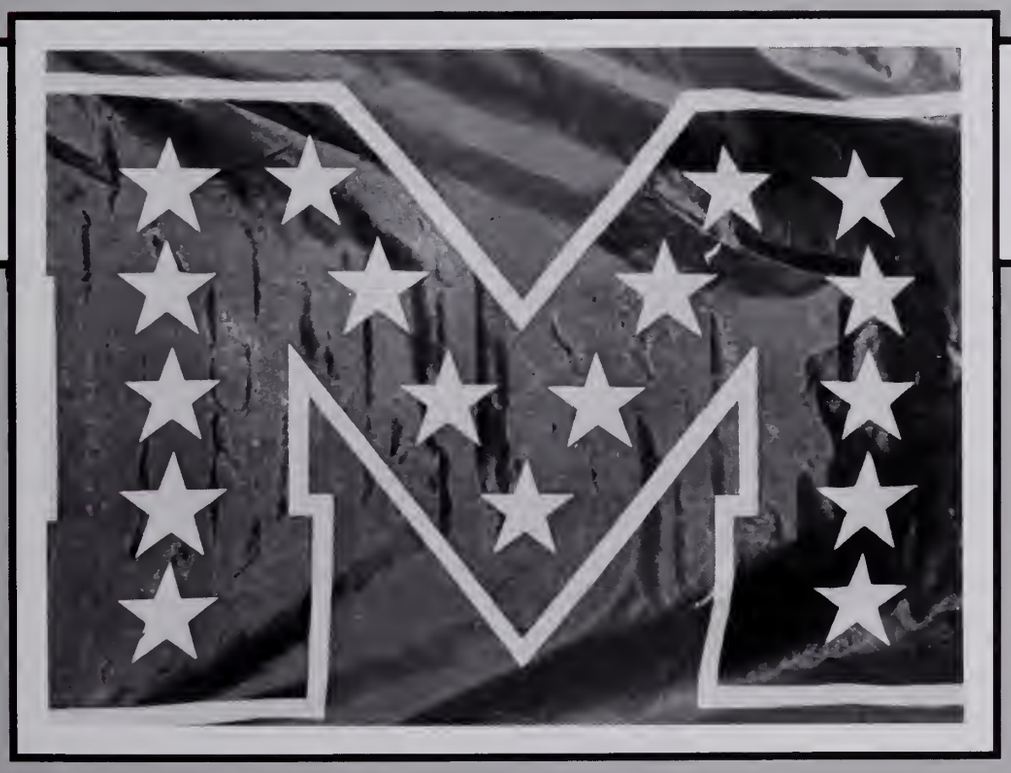

Noblin said, "If we fall short for some reason, the school would help us out. They decided that this project is beneficial enough that they could lend a hand if it was needed."

She said reaction to the flag, on the most part was quite good. "We do have a few people who say, 'Well, I'm keeping my Confederate flag,' but that hasn't happened much," Noblin said.

"Most people understood that we were not in opposition to anybody's flag," she said.

Black Student Union President Reginald Turner said that he was glad to see the senior class take an initiative to ease some of the controversy surrounding the Confederate flag, especially in light of some of the negative things that have happened this year.

"The black student union was very impressed," he said. "I definitely think it is a positive move and a step in the right direction." by Amy Vincent.

Darnell leads Rebs to 7-4 bowl season

The 1989 Ole Miss Rebel football team overcame much adversity and reached new heights enroute to its first trip to the Liberty Bowl since 1968.

There the Rebels played Heisman Trophy candidate Dee Dowis and his wishbone-oriented Air Force Falcons December 28.

Ole Miss went on to win the game 42-29. It was the third time in head coach Billy Brewer'seven-year tenure at Ole Miss that the Rebels earned a trip to a bowl game.

The Rebels finished the regular season 7-4 overall, and 4-3 in the Southeastern Conference, good enough for fourth place. Plagued by a series of injuies early in the season, mostly on the defensive side of the ball, the Rebels rallied behind the explosive offense of senior quarterback John Darnell, senior receivers Pat Coleman and Willie Green, and tailback Randy Baldwin.

The Rebels won four games coming from behind, three of them in the final minute of play, and they came within inches of winning two other games in the final seconds.

But the biggest lost of the team was on October 28 during the homecoming game against Vanderbilt. It was during this game when redshirt freshman Roy Lee "Chucky" Mullins suffered a severe neck injury.

The Russellville, Ala. native was paralyzed from the neck down after breaking up a Vanderbilt pass play inside the Rebels' 10-yard line.

Ole Miss established the Roy Lee "Chucky" Mullins trust fund to help pay for Mullins' lifetime care. Aided by donations from across the nation, Ole Miss raised over $600,000 for Mullins.

Oddly enough the road to the Liberty Bowl began where it would end, in Memphis.

In the opening game of the season Ole Miss knocked off Memphis State 20-13 as Darnell completed 15-of-29 passes for 259 yards.

The following week the Rebels traveled to Gainesville, Fla. to tackle Emmitt Smith and the Florida Gators. Winning on the road is a tough task in the SEC, but the Rebels took advantage of Florida turnovers as the defense preserved the win for Ole Miss.

The first home game of the season was played on campus against Arkansas State, a team that always gives the Rebels fits.

Darnell passed for 412 yards and three touchdowns to lead Ole Miss to a 34-31 win at Vaught-Hemingway Stadium. Darnell's 412 yards was the most since Archie Manning threw for 436 against Alabama in 1969.

Although it was the offense lighting up the scoreboard, it was the defense not allowing ASU to score in the second half which was the key to the win. It was the first time since 1981 that the Rebels had won their first three games.

Ole Miss received its first real test against the eighth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks in Jackson. The Razorbacks survived a late rally by the Rebels as Darnell was intercepted in the endzone with 13 seconds to play. Arkansas won 24-17.

After a one week rest, Ole Miss returned to Jackson to tangle with the Alabama Crimson Tide.

Things looked good early for the Rebels as they jumped out to a 21-0 lead in the opening seven minutes of the game, but the Tide rolled back to take a 62-27 win.

Ole Miss licked its wounds and returned to campus to host the Georgia Bulldogs. With just 31 seconds to play and Ole Miss down 13-10, Darnell hit senior flanker Reid Hines in the endzone for a touchdown. It was Hines' first career TD catch.

Ole Miss traveled to New Orelans to play a struggling Tulane Green Wave. The Rebels had to scratch and fight to earn its second consecutive last-minute win as the Rebels scored 22 fourth quarter points, the final score a 24-yard pass to tight end Rich Gebbia with four seconds remaining in the game.

The following week was Homecoming But this Homecoming game will be re membered like no other in Ole Miss his tory.

It was in the first quarter of this gam against the Vanderbilt Commodore that safety Chucky Mullins was para lyzed from the neck down.

The Rebels once again came from be hind to win. Trailing 10-0 at halftime the Rebels scored 28 unanswered point in the second half.

Over 42,000 showed up at Vaught Hemingway the following week as the 1 6 LSU Tigers came to campus for th first time since 1960.

Trailing 35-30 in the final minute o play, Darnell proceeded to march th Rebels downfield in the final minutes o the game like he had done several time previously. With 19 seconds to g Darnell was intercepted in the endzon by LSU's Jimmy Young.

Ole Miss took its second open date o the season to prepare for its trip t Knoxville, Tenn. to play the Volunteers The Vols put the game away with 1 fourth quarter points and 294 yard rushing from freshman Chuck Webb winning 33-21.

The Rebels entered the Egg Bow against Mississippi State with the Lib erty Bowl bid assured Ole Miss knocke off its arch-rival 22-11. •

This year the Ole Miss Rebels returned to the Liberty Bowl for the time since 1968 when they beat Virginia Tech 34-17.

The Rebels biggest concern was defense, and stopping Air Force quarterback Dee Dowis. Some say Dowis is the best ever at operating the "wishbone," a running style of offense that traditionally has given Ole Miss troubles.

But the Rebels had a score to settle with the Falcons. In 1983 it was Air Force who topped Ole Miss 9-3 in the Independence Bowl.

Ole Miss jumped out to a 28-9 halftime lead enroute to its 42-29 grounding of the Air Force.

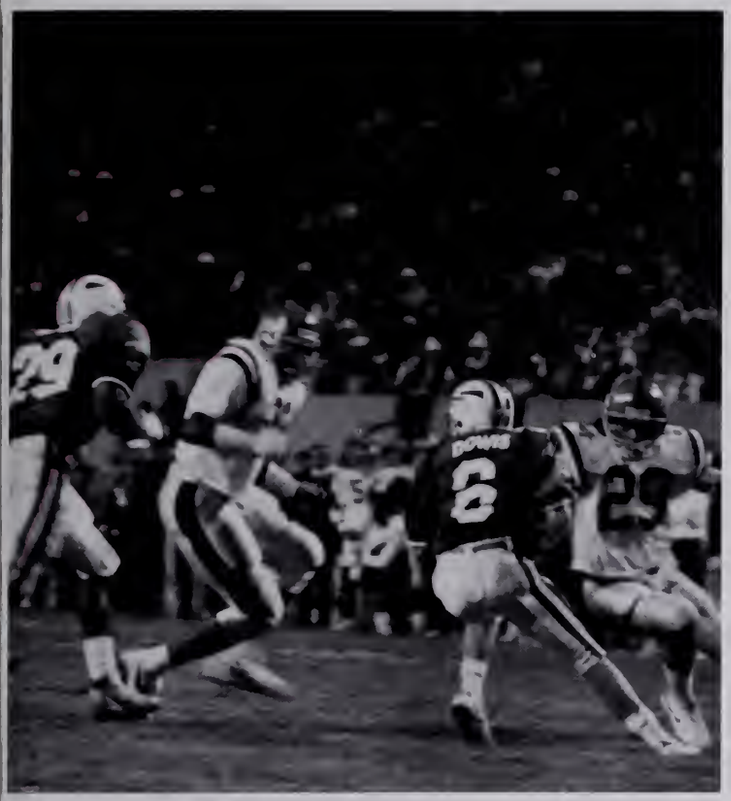

The Rebels scored on their first two possessions as quarterback John Darnell hooked up with receiver Reid Hines on a 32-yard touchdown strike. The next possession, tailback Randy Baldwin scored from 23 yards out.

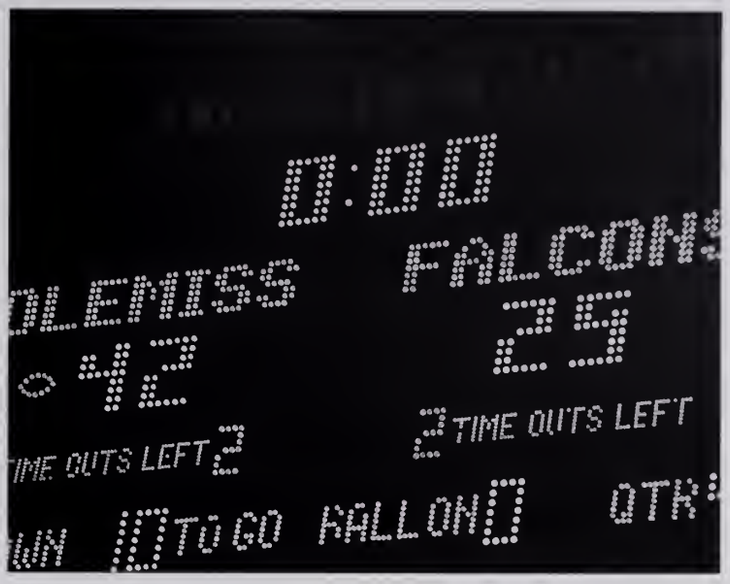

Ole Miss continued to dominate the game and held Dowis to just 86 yards rushing.

Baldwin, the game's Most Valuable Player, rushed for 177 yards and two touchdowns. It was the first time an Ole Miss player rushed for over 150 in a game since Buford McGee had 167 against Tulane in 1983.

Ole Miss set numerous team records including most first downs (30), most points in a bowl game, and 533 total yards offense is also a team bowl record.

Cheerleaders

Motivating

Hotty Toddy! Gosh Almighty! Who The Hell Are We! Flim Flam! Bim Bam! Ole Miss -By Damn!

The University of Mississippi Cheerleading Squad has been working on one main goal the last few years and that is to motivate Ole Miss fans.

Cheerleading Coach Brad Bromich said, "The main goal over the past few years has been trying to get back to the purpose behind cheerleading from the very beginning; that is, to lead the crowd. We feel Ole Miss has the potential to be as good as any crowd anywhere."

"What we are trying to do," said Bromich, "is focus their energy into something that would motivate the team, whether that can be Hotty Toddy, crowd participation, yells, or something with the band."

Bromich said the cheerleaders practice two hours a day, six days a week. The cheerleading squad is trying to be as collegiate as possible in their skills such as partner stunts and gymnastics.

Bromich said that although the cheerleading squad has competed nationally and has ranked in the top 15 squads in the nation for the last two years, Ole Miss Spirit, is still their number one goal.

"A team performs better with a crowd that is really supporting the team," said Bromich. "Verbal support is always better than just presence at the game."

Bromich said the squad has been using new things to increase crowd participation, such as the use of the mike man who is called Colonel Reb. Guy Cobb, a sophomore from Springfield, Missouri, and who is formally of the Budlight Daredevils, is the 1989-90 Colonel Reb.

Cobb said that the cheerleaders like to get some cohesion with the crowd. They try to focus everything and get everyone to cheer and yell at the same time.

"Anyone who has played a sport knows how important it is to have the crowd behind you," said Cobb. "As the mike man I try to throw some humor here and there so the crowd won't get down on the team or down in spirit. Someone may describe me as the crowd quarterback.

Kim Kalbearer, a senior from Dallas, Texas said one of the obstacles of being an Ole Miss cheerleader is to get Ole Miss fans to participate, but she added that the fans have come a long way in the four years she has been cheering. Kalbearer said being a cheerleader is a lot of work, but it is definitely worth it.

"We were ranked 11th in the nation last year and I can't wait for next year to see what happens," said Kalbearer. •

New stadium brightens team's future

The most promising aspect that makes the 1990s bright for the Ole Miss baseball team is a new playing facility, the Oxford-University Stadium/Swayze Field. The 3.75 million dollar stadium was completed in October.

Lights brought nighttime baseball to Oxford. One of those 15 night games was probably the biggest of the year, a nationally-televised game on ESPN April 24 against the Kentucky Wildcats.

The Rebels won the game 6-4 and impressed future players, coaches, professional scouts, and baseball fans with their new stadium.

"A lot of people had a chance to see our ball club, and our facilities," said Ole Miss head coach Jake Gibbs.

"The announcers gave Ole Miss and our ball club great publicity," he said.

Gibbs said not only does the new stadium add to the baseball program in the form of recruiting, it enhances the beauty of the campus as a whole.

"One thing it did, when you ride into campus, you see a first-class, real nice-looking baseball facility," Gibbs said, "which I think all the people at the university, Oxford, and Mississippi in particular are proud of."

Gibbs also said the stadium improved the baseball atmosphere on campus.

"It gave us some baseball atmosphere of having nice seats to sit in and nice concession stands," Gibbs said.

According to Gibbs, concession sales by the first of April had surpassed those of two years at Old Swayze Field.

The new stadium has player locker rooms, training rooms, an equipment room, a weight room, and an indoor hitting facility.

"For the kids we have here now playing for us, it's a different atmosphere, different attitude for them to come, to a place and know this is ours," Gibbs said.

Gibbs said he can now recuit nationally because of the new facility.

"When we bring a kid in now, we have a chance to sign him. Two or three years ago I wouldn't have got in the door," he said.

The Ole Miss Rebel baseball team end the '80s on a high note, posting a 34-21 overall record and a 9-15 Southeastern Conference record.

"One negative part you might say about last year was we had a good enough team to be in the NCAA tournament, but we lost too many close games, due to the fact we had a shortage of relief pitchers that could save ball games for us," Gibbs said.

"We lost five ball games in the either the eighth of ninth inning where we had the lead and couldn't save it," he said. "If we had saved those ball games, we would've been in the tournament."

There were some pleasant surprises for the Rebels by some younger players, signifying good things to come.

Redshirt freshman Nate Riddley led the team in hitting with a .345 average. Another freshman, southpaw pitcher Grant Sullivan, went 7-2 with a 3.79 ERA.

"Nate came on strong in the middle of the year. He was a steady defensive player for us, but he started doing the job with his bat toward the middle of the season," Gibbs said.

"With a little bit of luck, Grant could've been 9-0," Gibbs said. "We're expecting him to have another good year. He should be smarter, more settled than he was last year."

Both Riddley and Sullivan were named to the Mississippi All-State team.

Two other Rebels, second baseman Lee Hodge and shortstop Keith Kessinger were named second-team All-SEC.

The Rebels lost three players to the pro ranks. Kessinger was drafted by the Baltimore Orioles, cather Jim Cosman by the Philadelphia Phillies and junior pitcher Darren Musselwhite opted to leave early to sign with the San Francisco Giants organization.

Another surprise last year was two wins over arch-rival and national powerhouse Mississippi State.

The Rebels won 8-7 in the first of a scheduled doubleheader in Starkville. Ole Miss upended the Bulldogs 4-3 in Jackson to lay claim to the Mayor's Trophy.

Ole Miss was one out away from winning the second game of the doubleheader in Starkville before the game was called.

"We only needed one more out. In SEC play, if that game is suspended, we were going to pick it up that Sunday where it left off," Gibbs said. "And it just so happened it rained that Sunday morning and we couldn't get it in."

Gibbs said he feels the Rebel baseball program is complete.

"We've always sold Ole Miss on the beauty of the campus, the academic part of it and the friendliness of the people, he said.

"We had some things we could sell to a student about Ole Miss by not having a great baseball facility.

"Now I think you're going to see us recruiting a better student-athlete. Recruiting has made a 100 percent difference." •

Team reaches for NCAA

After reaching the National Invitaion (NIT) last season and losing just one starter, fourth-year Ed Murphy's basketball team had dreams of reaching the NCAA Tournament.

With superstar All-American Gerald Glass, who finished fourth in the country in scoring last year, and the addition of freshman Joe Harvell and a rehabilitated Tim Jumper, Ole Miss seemed assured of playing in postseason play.

But the road started rocky as the Rebels were upset in their opening game against Southwestern Louisiana in Jackson.

The Rebels hosted Big-10 power Illinois, a 1989 Final Four participant. The Rebels lost, but got their chance to even the score at the Illini Classic a couple of weeks later.

In the opening round of the Illini Classic, after having lost to nationally-ranked Arkansas, Ole Miss was upset by Metro State. It was the team's fifth consecutive loss without a win.

Then other troubles began to take their toll. Sophomore guard Hunter Atkins quit the team as did junior Greg Turner, leaving Murphy shallow on the bench forcing him to play younger players sooner than anticipated.

The 1989-90 season saw another change in the Rebels, this one in the coaching scheme. Murphy installed the 2-3 zone defense and mixed it in with his man-to-man philosophy.

Ole Miss opened conference play at home against Tennessee with newcomer Patrick Eddie, a 6-foot-11 junior college transfer in the lineup. With Eddie and Murphy's son, Sean, at center, the Rebels had their own twin towers.

The Rebels continued to struggle to reach the .500 mark. By mid February the Rebels had improved to 9-13 and 6-7 in the Southeastern Conference play as they looked to a good showing SEC Tournament as their hope of breaking into postseason play. •

Courageous Lady Rebels

The 1989-90 Lady Rebel basketball team may go down in history as the most courageous team head coach Van Chancellor has coached during his 11 years at Ole Miss.

Ole Miss, one of only six teams to have competed in all eight NCAA Tournaments, began the season ranked 12th. Injuries and a tough schedule knocked the Lady Rebels out of the rankings for the first time.

It wasn't until the middle of February that the Lady Rebels worked their way back into the Top 25 with a 19-5 record, 7-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

Two big reasons the Lady Rebels have met the challenges they've been faced with are sophomore Charlotte Banks and senior guard Michelle Hartzog-Brown.

Banks was an academic casualty and sat out her freshman year. She has rebounded to be one of the teams top scorers.

Hartzog-Brown stepped forward providing the leadership a top contender needs. Hartog-Brown is solid in all facets of the game.

Junior Jackie Martin, All-SEC honorable mention last year, is the team's top scorer, assist leader, and ball handler.

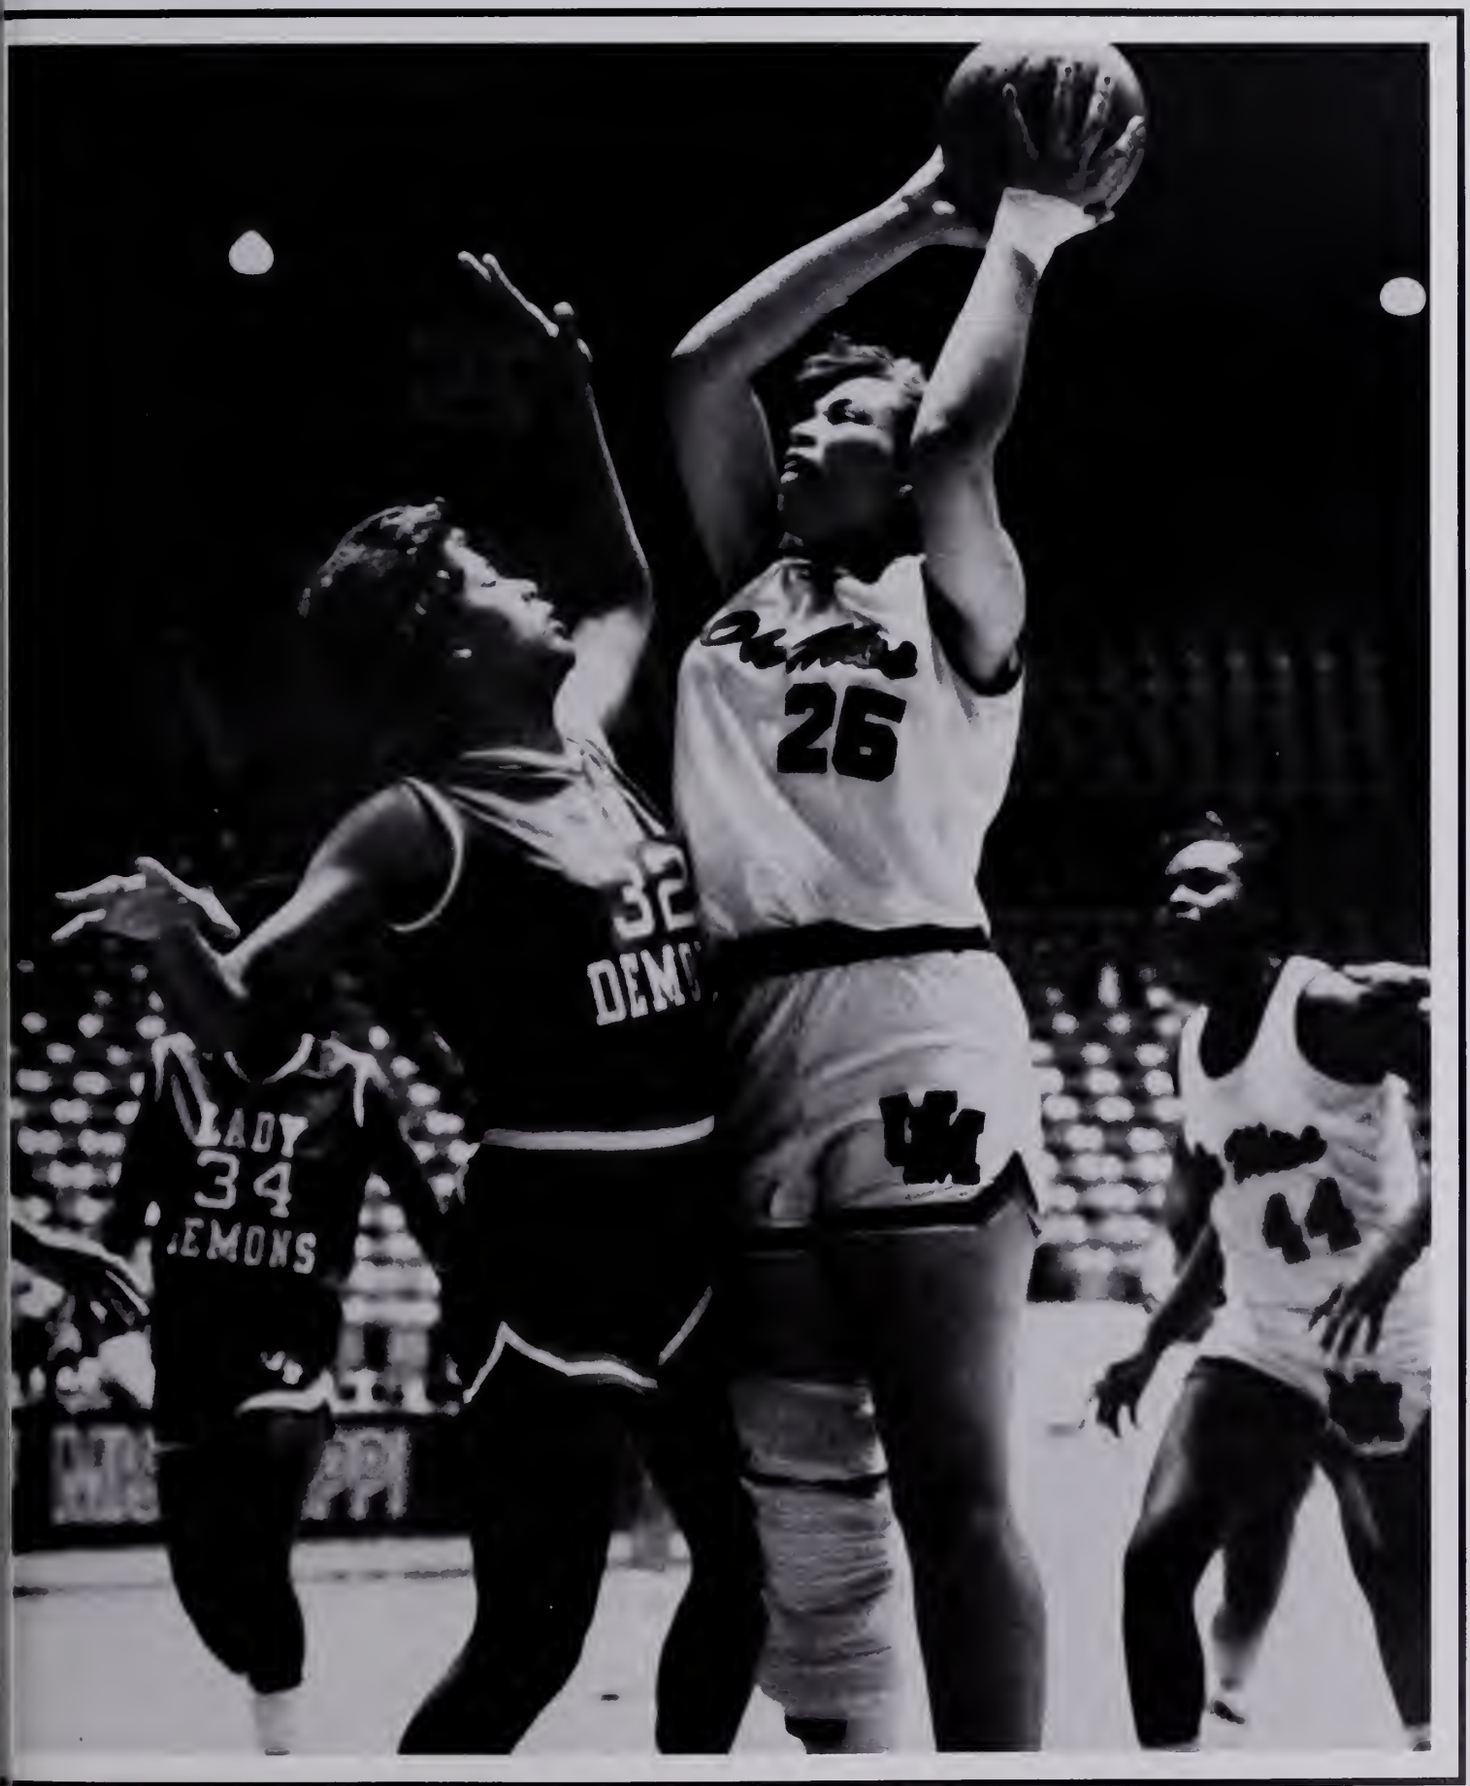

O'Neal, an All-SEC selection last season, has come back to average 10 points and six rebounds per game and once again established herself as a dominate force in the paint.

Two newcomers to Chancellor's program have helped the team's depth. Junior Antrice McGill and sophomore Kristen Goehring have shared time at the small forward position.

Ole Miss looks to extend its string of NCAA appearances this season with a strong finish and a chance at its first regular season SEC championship.

Struggling to break even

The Ole Miss men's and women's golf teams struggled to break even in the tough Southeastern Conference.

The Rebels finished a disappointing last in their last five tournaments. The best team showing was the first tournament at the Gator Invitational in Gainesville, Fla. where Ole Miss finished fifth.

The Lady Rebels finished its third and best season of competition. The Lady Rebels set three team records, including most top five finishes with two, most top 10 finishes with four, and lowest total for a single round with a 318.

Individually, Dave Miley of the men's team was named to the All-SEC team. Miley had five top 10 finishes with a highest finish of third in the Gator Invitational in Gainesville. He missed qualifying for the NCAA Tournament by six strokes at the first ever East Regional Golf Tournament in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

For the women, freshman Chris Darci broke four Lady Rebel records, including a best stroke average in a season with an 80.5 over 15 rounds. Her best finish was a fourth place finish in the Peggy Kirk Bell Invitational.

TOP GUN All-SEC Dave Miley led the 1989 Rebel golf team with a 72.9 stroke average.

Expert coaching pays off

When John Blair took over the Ole Miss Volleyball program four years ago, he inherited a mediocre team that he thought would take six years to rebuild — it only took four.

"When I got here I had a definite idea in my mind of what it would take to be successful," he said. "I determine success according to my own criteria, not by wins or losses."

His first three years, 41 wins and 52 losses, was not very successful. However, those three years built the foundation for a winning season. By mid-season, the 1989 team had won more games any other team coached by Blair.

In order for Blair to incorporate his philosophy of the sport, he needed the right players to do it. Recruiting is the only way to get those players.

One problem for Blair in recruiting players is the fact that no Mississippi high school has varsity volleyball; therefore, players have to be recruited from other states.

In 1988 the team had most of the players it needed to compete in the Southeastern Conference, but the competition was so stiff that the Lady Rebels finised 6-17, the lowest record in school history.

"Last year we went out of our way to find tough opponents because we knew that's the level we needed to be for the SEC," Blair said.

Blair said the difference in this year's team as compared to previous teams is the fact that the team is more relaxed, more confident and is playing with more intensity.

"If you're not playing relaxed you're inefficient because you're concentrating too much on mechanics," he said.

For the Lady Rebels, junior setter and team captain Michelle Whitby is the heart of the team. Whitby led the team with more than 700 assists, and more than 200 digs.

Although Whitby has pernicious anemia, an iron deficiency anemia, she didn't show any effects of her condition in her games.

In fact, during some games she never left the court.

"Most of the time, like when you get caught up in a match, you can push yourself through," she said.

Whitby, a native of Memphis, transferred to Ole Miss in 1987 from Mississippi State where she started all 48 games as a freshamn.

However, the year she signed with Mississippi State, a new volleyball coach was hired, prompting her to transfer to Ole Miss.

Whitby said, "I didn't like the new coach and it was a much better program here with coach Blair."

According to Cami Jones, senior blocker, Whitby's value to the team cannot even begin to be measured.

Jones said, "I don't think there are enough words to describe what kind of player she is. She's subceptible to a lot of things, but she's dedicated to volleyball."

Before the season started the team set a goal to be in Pensacola, Florida, Thanksgiving Day weekend for the SEC tournament, a very realistic goal, Blair said.

"Our goal was not to finish first in the conference, it was just to finish in the top four, he said. •

Top twenty team

For the first time ever, head coach Billy Chadwick's team finished in the Top 20 in the country as the Rebels ended the season ranked 15th with a 17-10 mark.

Number one singles player Dave Randall achieved the highest ranking ever by a Rebel moving as high as ninth during the season. Randall finished the season 21st in the nation, one position away from being named an All-American. He was 31-8 in singles competition.

Keith Evans finished runner-up to Alabama's John Stenson in the Southeastern Conference's No. 2 championship.

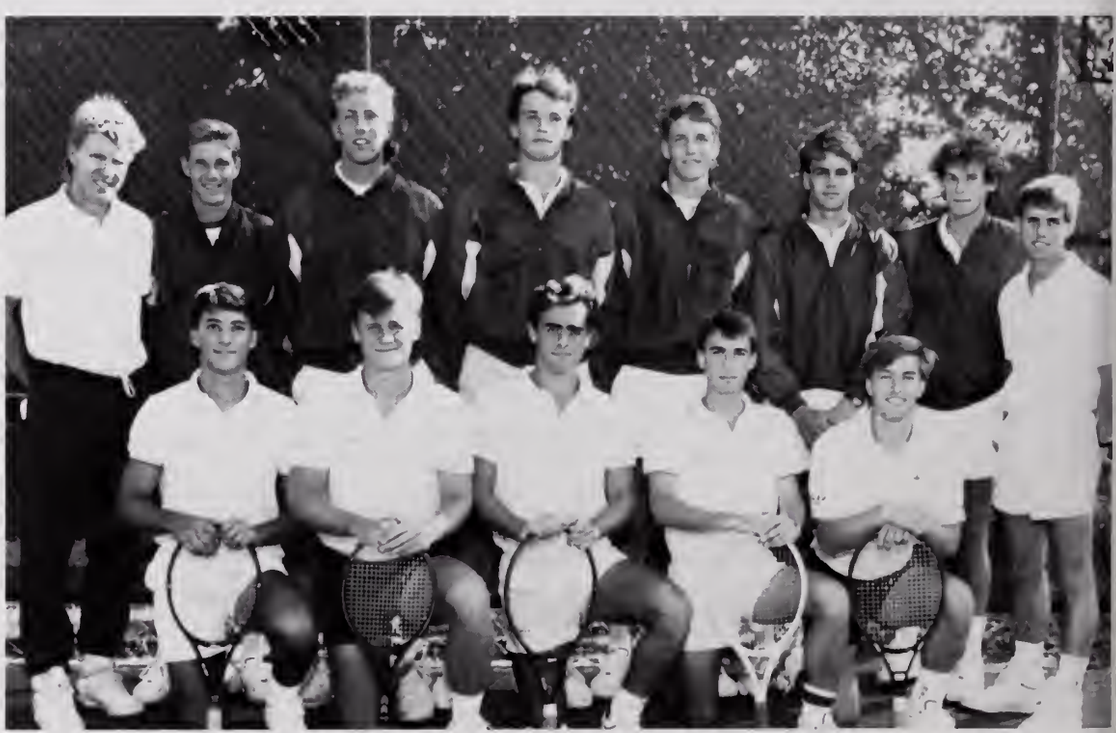

Jamie Booras and Mike Knowles teamed up to finish as the SEC's runner-up No. 2 doubles team.

Randall, who qualified for the NCAA in singles play, joined forces with Booras in NCAA doubles action.

As a team, it was the first time Ole Miss qualified for the NCAA Tournament. The Rebels were eliminated in the first round by Miami, Fla.

Number one singles player Alison Hill finished 98th in the NCAA accumulating a 26-15 record.
The doubles team of Ferris Newell and Nina Topper finished with a

Indoor Season

The Ole Miss men's track team worked its way through the indoor season with mixed results.

On the individual side of the coin, Ole Miss men turned in some stellar performances. But as a whole, the team had a disappointing season, finishing ninth with 14 points at the Southeastern Conference Indoor. LSU won the championship with 117 points.

Freshman triple jumper Alvin Haynes earned six of the Rebels' points with a third-place finish. Haynes jumped 51-10 1/2, improving his personal best by two feet and tying a team record.

In the 500 meters, Gabriel Dear finished fifth to earn his first SEC points and senior Bucky Thomas took fifth in the 800 meters. The highlight of Thomas' season came when he won the 800 meters at the Shearson Lehman Hutton Games.

Other highlights during the season was a record-breaking performance at the Arkansas State Relays by the distance medley relay team of Donald Kelley, Russ Curry, Phillip Dorion, and Mark Hadley.

Sprinter Derrick Green set a meet record at the Arkansas State Invitational in the 200-meter dash, and the 4x400-meter realy team of Green, Kelly, Curry, and Dear also took first place.

Team shows individual success

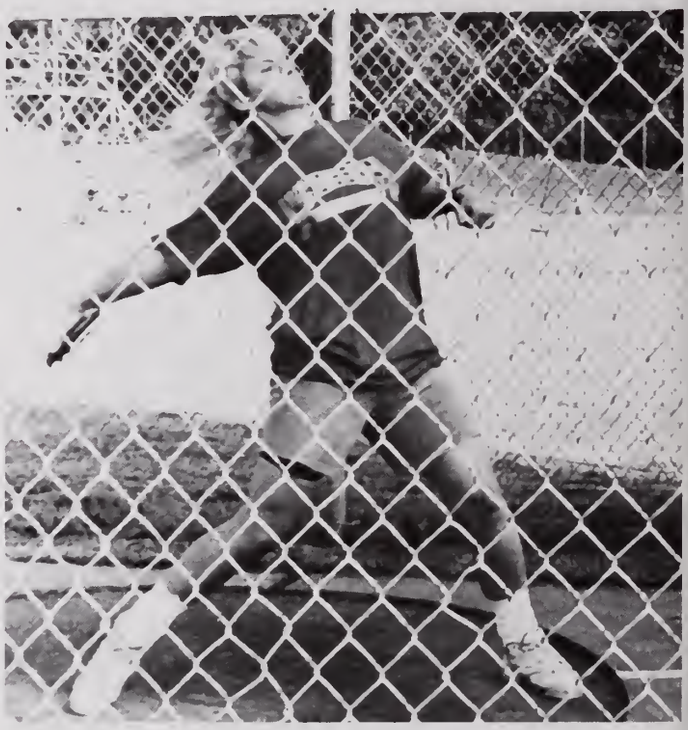

The Lady Rebel track team, much like the men's team, enjoyed some individual successes and showed evidence of improving as a team.

The Lady Rebels finished ninth, at the Southeastern Conference Indoor. Darlene Calvin earned points with a sixth-place finish in the 3000-meter run. The team of Bonnie Collins, Erica Burley, Kristi Mullins, and Nyarinda Aduma finished sixth in the mile relay.

Calvin set a team record at the Shearson Lehman Hutton Games in the 5000-meter run. Junior Magee Henson broke a school record in the women's 800-meter run. Henson also won the mile run at the Mississippi Open.

At the Arkansas State Relays, Charlotte Ashe set a school record in the 55-meter hurdles, shattering the old mark by almost two seconds.

The one bright spot for the team was a thrid-place finish in the Arkansas State Invitational.

The Ole Miss Karate Club was founded in 1975 by Bob Nance. Nance's senior student, Bobby Holley, took over as instructor of the group in 1982. Holley is currently director of the Mississippi Karate Association. The style of the Ole Miss Karate Club is Isshinryu, an Okinawan variety. Balance, posture, and agility are stressed as well as stamina and physical conditioning. The club represents the University by sponsoring a major tournament each fall, through seminars by karate masters such as A.J. Advincula, and by its own demonstrations and rank tests. The Karate Club meets on Monday and Wednesday nights, and is open to all students, faculty, and staff.

There are numerous students organizations on the Ole Miss campus. Inside are a some of the more popular organizations.

DAILY MISSISSIPPIAN

The Daily Mississippian is the only daily student-run newspaper in Mississippi. It publishes a circulation of 10,000 Monday through Friday and is primarily funded through advertising. The newspaper employs more than 80 staff members, who not only report the news, but learn to edit copy, write headlines, design pages, and develop and print photos. The Mississippian is the only college newspaper that has full membership in the Mississippi Press Association. Through the MPA, The Mississippian competes annually with professional newspapers statewide.

The Mississippian has served Ole Miss since 1911, and has been daily since 1962. The Daily Mississippian is available for students by 7 a.m. each day in most campus buildings and at many local businesses. It not only focuses primarily upon issues that affect the Ole Miss community, but also features state, national, and world news.

PSI CHI

Psi Chi is the National Honor Society in Psychology founded in 1929 for the purpose of fulfilling two major goals. The first of these is the obligation of the society to provide academic recognition to its initiates by the mere factof membership. The second goal is the obligation of each of the local chapters to nurture the spark of that accomplishment by offering a climate congenial to creative development. The University of Mississippi Chapter has strived to fulfill these goals through several outlets. Psi Chi has sponsored a blood drive, held seminars for the undergraduate students, offered tutoring services in psychology, started a biannual newsletter, and held social events with the purpose of strengthening faculty-student relations. photo by Ken Ivey

PHI KAPPA

The National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, founded in 1897, was originated by a group of students who felt the need to recognize scholarship in all disciplines. The society was soon transformed into a national orginization by action of a committee composed of the presidents of the University of Maine, the University of Tennessee, and Pennsylvania State College.

The University of Mississippi chapter was chartered in May 1959, as the 77th chapter of Phi Kappa Phi. There are 245 chapters in the 50 states, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines.

To qualify for membership, undergraduates must be seniors or second semester juniors with high standards of scholarship and character. Graduate students and students in professional schools must have distinguished records placing them among the ablest in their classes. Faculty members must have made significant contributions to their disciplines.

Not a new dilemma

Concerned pledge pleas for an end to hazing

A fraternity pledge revealed that he believes hazing is a major problem in fraternities on campus.

Associate Dean of Students Sparky Readon, received and anonymous letter stating the hazing is continuing to be an issue among pledges before initiation.

The author, who called himself "a concerned pledge," threatened to mail his letter to 37 other newspapers if Readon did nor react to the problem of hazing among pledges.

He wrote, "The local headlines can read 'UM Undertakes Drastic New Anti-Hazing Policy' or the national headlines can read 'UM Knew of Hazing and Did Nothing' the next time there is a Beta incident or a pledge is killed or injured. It is your choice.

"As a fraternity pledge I can tell you that mental and physical abuse is common in my fraternity. From listening to the guys around the dorm, I know it is common in all of the other fraternities also," wrote the pledge.

"If a pledge is reliable, has good attendance records to work parties, meetings, etc., and passes his tests on fraternity history she should be initiated without further ado."

The pledge's solution to eliminating hazing involves participation from school supervisors.

"You (Reardon) know when this (hell week) is so just don't allow pledgs to be at their respective fraternity houses without (IFC) supervision."

"Fraternities here have proven over and over againg that they can't clean up their own acts regarding hazing. Perhaps if the school polices them or if they police each other there can be an end put to this nonsense," he wrote.

The anonymous writer said everyone is against hazing but no one takes action to prevent ti.

"As I write this I have already seen a lot of other guys around the dorm coming in at 3 or 4 in the morning after a night of bing paddled, humiliated, screamed at, and God only know what els," the pledge said.

Sammy Sliman, Sigma Nu commander said, "I believe the boy is scared from the stories he's heard. I don't think he's in jeopardy, but I think he believes he will be. I don't think there is any serious hazing going on on this campus right now."

Reardon siad he wanted to make this letter public because he is frustrated about the "alleged activity and not having people come forward."

Charlie Upton, Sigma Chi president said, "If this letter is legitimate, the pledge should come forward and speak to Sparky and reveal his name."

Reardon said in a newspaper reply to the pledge, "If you (or anyone else out there) really care about yourself or your friends, or the Greek system, you can't afford to hid behind anonymity. You've got to come forward."

"I will do anything humanly possible to stop hazing," he said. "We've got to keep plugging. •

BEGINNING OR END? Bid day is one of the most exciting times for a rushee; however it is known that hazing does exist once the pledging begins. More often than not, Greeks provide a pleasant atmosphere and many new friendships are made that lasts a lifetime.

Panhellenic Council

The Panhellenic Council is the governing body for sororities at Ole Miss. It is composed of an executive council, sorority presidents and two representatives from each sorority.

The Panhellenic operates under the auspices of the National Panhellenic Council (NPC), and members of the National Pan-Hellenic Council (NP-HC), the national governing organization of historically black Greek social sororities and fraternities, are also members of the Panhellenic and the IFC at Ole Miss.

Dr. Judy Trott, Dean of Students said that a sorority is a group of college women who have elected to establish a close affiliation with one another for four years as college students and thereafter as college and sorority alumnae.

She said the sorority seeks to maintain high ideals in scholarship and social life for its members.

"The University takes pride in the fine spirit of the sororities on campus and in the contribution that they make to University life," said Trott. "In scholarship, service and in various phases of campus leadership, the sororities have achieved a record of which they may be justly proud.

Each year Panhellenic sets the guidelines for rush and other sorority social activities. Two committees appointed by Panhellenic and IFC met this year to revise the swap system. Old problems were discussed and a new name and philosophy were established.

Under the new swap system, fraternities and sororities are required to split costs, pledges cannot be forced to attend and party hours were extended until midnight.

Interfraternity Council

Also, the parties were scheduled using a rotation system; thus eliminating a fraternity from having more than one party with a particular sorority. Once each fraternity has had a party with all sororities, then the rotation begins again.

"We are playing a much stronger role in decisions that affect all Greek organizations, such as the new guidelines for 'Mixers,' (formerly 'Swaps')" said Suzanne Skipton, Panhellenic president.

Stacey Wood, Delta Delta Delta social chairman said that members of her sorority were very excited about the new attitude toward mixers.

"There should not be any more troubles like in the past due to the new regulations."

Mark Howser, Phi Kappa Tau president said, "I think it is really good that the administration is giving the Greeks a chance to prove that we can be adults."

However, David Shields, Alpha Tau Omega treasurer, expressed a concern for the name change.

He said, "I though one of the main purposes of changing the swap system was to get away from alcohol-related connotations. Wasn't 'mixers' a poor choice of words?"

The Interfraternity Council (IFC), the governing body and central organization of fraternities at Ole Miss, consists of an IFC council, fraternity presidents and two representatives from each social fraternity recognized on Ole Miss campus.

The purpose of the organization is to advance the better interests of the fraternities in connection with the general welfare of the student body as a whole and to better relations among Greeks. The IFC is also instrumental in organizing Fraternity Rush.

IFC operates under the direction of National Interfraternity Council (NIC) recommendations. •

1,230 rushees receive bids; Campus flooded with joy

More than 1,000 new sorority and fraternity pledges gathered on Sorority Row for the annual bid night celebration.

Rush ended with 587 women receiving bids from 10 sororities and 572 men pledging 14 fraternities. Zeta Tau Alpha, held its rush later in the semester and inducted 71 pledges.

Bid Day is saturated by the emotions of well over a thousand rushees, all of whom keep their fears, worries, and confusion pent up for a seemingly infinite week. When the long anticipated Saturday finally arrives, the campus floods with feelings of relief, happiness, and sometimes even surprise.

"Rush was a really fun but tiring experience because I was able to meet a lot of people in a short time, yet I had to choose my favorite fraternity in only a week," said Michael Earhart, a Phi Kappa Psi pledge from Memphis, Tennessee.

Lee Massey, a Delta Gamma pledge from Columbus said, "Although rush was a unique experience, sometimes scary, Bid Day seemed to make the process all worthwhile, for I was finally a part of the sorority I loved the most!"

Assistant dean of students, Sparky Reardon said that he was very impressed with the cooperation between the IFC officers, rush counselors and fraternities during the organized dry (non-alcoholic) rush.

Reardon said, "I believe this has been the best organized rush, and best group of IFC officers I have ever worked with."

Bid Day at Ole Miss is quite a remarkable experience for the multitude of pledges because a new year — as well as a new life — has begun. It is the commencement of lasting friendships, irreplaceable camaraderie, and new directions.

Alpha Phi Alpha and Delta Sigma Theta stepped off with first place trophies and $150 each at the annoul Phi Beta Sigma Homecoming Greek Show.

Wearing capes and masks, the Deltas jumped from the aisle onto the stage and stepped to Prince's "Batdance." The Deltas then gave a salute to all the historically black fraternities by imitating their steps.

Alpha Phi Alpha began the mens' competition. The Alphas began their show strong with special effects; a strobe light, a 300-pound block of ice, banners, and a giant foil cube.

Dressed in black pants and yellow turtlenecks, the Alphas performed fifteen minutes of precision stepping.

Greekshows are competitions between members of the historically black Greek-letter organiztions. The steps include everything from heavy stomps and spins to high precision taps and claps. Winners are chosen from a panel of judges which usually is made up of graduate members of each of the different Greeks. Prizes may range from trophies to $1,000 in cash.

Often shows include humorous insults to rival Greeks, but Antonnio Benton said the teasing done among the different groups — like the Sigmas mentioned the Ques staying in jail are the Nupes having a 0.0 GPA — is not to be taken seriously.

"It's done in fun," Benton said. •

Greeks have fun without sun

Ole Miss Greeks anticipated the arrival of Greek Week as a chance to enjoy the sun and some friendly competition. However, cold winds blew, making the temperature dip into the low fifties and storm clouds threatened rain. Despite the wind and cold weather, students turned out in full force for the week's activities.

Greek Week was five days of activities, competition and cooperation among the fraternities and sororities. The games, which culminated the week, were an annual event designed to promote Greek unity and allow all participants to have a good time.

Clay Taylor, co-chairman of Greek Week said, "The purpose of Greek Week is to raise money for LeBonheur Children's Medical Center and give a positive image to the Greek System at Ole Miss."

The Greeks' combined efforts proved to be quite successful in the fundraiser. Ten thousand dollars was raised for the Children's Medical Center.

Dr. Judy Trott, Dean of Students, said that more money was raised this year than in previous years.

"We've had Greek Week for about ten years," she said, "and last year Greek Week raised about $6,000."

The week kicked off with a lip-sync competition, a golf tournament, scooter races and bedraces. Receiving the most points in these events were Beta Theta Pi and Pi Beta Phi.

Points were awarded for every event throughout the week, and the fraternity and the sorority with the most points were declared winners. For the third straight year, Beta Theta Pi Fraternity won top honors. Pi Beta Phi Sorority took the first place finish for sororities. •

Summer days end with water fun

As the hot summer days came to a close and the rigor of classes set in, Delta Gamma planned an afternoon of water fun for fraternity members.

Delta Gamma Sorority held its fourth annual Anchor Splash at the outdoor pool of the university to benefit the Sight Conservation and Aid to the Blind. This year the chapter raised over $3,000, a sum which doubled last year's total.

Volunteers from the sorority acted as coaches to the 15 fraternities who competed in the various swimming relays, the synchronized swimming event, and the popular Mr. Anchorsplash contest.

Heather Vahle, Anchor Splash chairman said there were more spectators this year because the Anchor Splash was widely publicized.

Vahle said, "Bleachers were provided by the Oxford Park Commission, and people could sit down and really be comfortable."

Despite the fact that two fraternities were disqualified from individual events for indecent exposure, the event seemed to be a unified effort of both pledges and actives.

Alpha Tau Omega placed first in the days events. Kappa Sigma placed second; Phi Delta Theta and Pi Kappa Alpha tied for third.

Will Davis of Alpha Tau Omega and Tom Brabyn of Pi Kappa Alpha tied for the title of Mr. Anchor Splash.

Although the Ole Miss Delta Gammas have only been sponsoring the Anchorsplash for four years, Delta Gamma Chapters all over the United States have sponsored their own version of the event. •

Games continue despite weather

KAPPAS LUV SIGMA CHIS! Derby Day Queen Beth McLees smiles with her team's coach, Tim Robertson.

The rainy weather did nothing to dampen the spirits of the Greek women who participated in games of the 1989 Sigma Chi Derby Day. The Derby Day festivities were off to a start and once again Ole Miss Sororities vied for the championship.

The games culminated the events of Derby Week, Sigma Chi Fraternity's annual feauture to raise funds for the Kidney Foundation. This year the fraternity with the help of participating sororities raised over $14,000.

Chase Bryan, co-chairman of Derby Day, said he was able to involve more of the campus through two new additions to the week's events, the Derby Day Dash and the golf tournament. He said the increased participation allowed the fraternity to raise more money.

At the beginning, some sororities had problems with the Derby Day Queen pageant and the high emphasis placed on the dance. As a result one sorority, Kappa Alpha Theta, refrained from participating in Derby Day activities; however they did contribute to the funds raised.

Despite rumors that other sororities would withdraw from the games, most of the sororities prepared their routines and practiced for the games in hopes of an exciting day.

The Derby Day Dash, a 5K run, began the week's activities. Billy Wright, a senior, finished first in the male division with a time of 16 minutes and 21 seconds. Andee Rudloff, a sophomore from Smiths Grove Kentucky, won the female division with a time of 19 minutes and 5 seconds.

Phi Mu sorority won the most points to capture the title of Derby Day Champions during the games at Education Field. Other top finishes for the day were Kappa Kappa Gamma, second and Alpha Delta Pi, third.

Beth McLees of Corinth, representing Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, was crowned Derby Day Queen. •

The spirits were running wild at the Alpha Delta Pi house Halloween night, 1989. The haunted stairwell was draped with orange and black streamers, and it echoed with eerie sounds of howling creatures, crackling witches, and moaning monsters.

Where did these strange poeple come from?

Halloween was the night for revenge. Little sisters had the opportunity to dress up their big sisters for the holiday and then go out as their counterpart. The costumes were kept a secret until the night of October 31, when little sisters gave their big sisters their disquises for the night. Hand-in-hand, big sisters and little sisters walked down the streamer-strewn stairway.

The big sister/little sister relationships are quite special, for it is activities like these that enable sorority members to develop new directions in friendships.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA

In 1908, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority became America's first Greek-lettered organization established by and for black women. On May 12, 1974, the Ivy Leaf Pledge Club became the Theta Psi Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., making it the first black sorority on the Ole Miss campus.

Locally, Theta Psi adopted a resident of the North Mississippi Retardation Center. Recently our pledge club volunteered assistance at the Special Olympics Games. Our purpose is "Service to All Mankind."

Be it academics, athletics, or any extracurricular endeavor, Theta Psi has been an active participant. One can always tell an Alpha Kappa Alpha woman. If not by her sorority's colors, then by her friendly smile and the generous heart that is always ready to help others in need.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Alpha Omicron Pi encourages both unity and individuality. We are a very diverse group from diverse backgrounds, bound together by the traditions and values of Alpha Omicron Pi. These beliefs are reflected in their symbols, the sheaf of wheat and the jacqueminot rose. The spirit of friendship and love found here is reflected by our mascot, the panda bear. Their pledges promise to be true not only to our founders, but to themselves.

Fall begins with Bid Day and finishes with their annual Christmas Party. In between are Big Sis/Lil Sis, Football Game Brunches, a Halloween Party, and parties or cookouts with fraternites. The highlight of Fall is the Winter Formal. Spring brings fun and sun. There are Crush Parties, Derby Day, Spring Formal, Arrange-A-Date, Greek Games, and Red and Blue Weekend to keep them busy. For parents, there is the annual Parents' Weekend with a crawfish boil and a softball game.

In an effort to strengthen the bonds of black students of the predominatly white campus of Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, seven men banded together to form a means by which they could help each other survive the racial prejudice storming about them, a task which had never been attempted before. On December 4, 1906, an nation witnessed the birth of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., the first fraternity for college educated black men.

The same vision which inspired the birth of Alpha Phi Alpha also inspired seven young men to charter Nu Upsilon Chapter at Ole Miss on March 20, 1978. In the chapter's young history, it has claimed the title of Mississippi Undergraduate Chapter of the year six times.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Alpha Tau Omega was founded on September 11, 1865, at the Virginia Military Institute. The Delta Psi Chapter of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity was founded 1927. Since its inception Alpha Tau Omega has played an integral part in Greek life here at The University of Missisisippi.

This chapter is very involved in every facet of campus life from student government to honoraries to social aspects.

Although Alpha Tau Omegas are quite busy with academics and campus involvement, members also know how to have fun. The Gatorbash, hosted by the chapter each spring, continuously proves to be one of the best parties of the year.

CHI OMEGA

Chi Omega, one of the older sororities on campus, is known for involvement in campus activities. As well as boasting Most Beautiful 1988, ASB secretary for three years, and highest scholarship on campus for two years, Chi Omega also finds time for service projects.

The philanthropy of Chi Omega, "Magic Lamp," was founded in the spring of 1988 by an active member of Chi Omega and two members of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.'

Magic Lamp is a non-profit organization which provides financial means for terminally ill children to be taken on the vacations of their dreams. Destinations have ranged from amusement parks, such as Walt Disney World and Six Flags, to Florida beaches.

The children who benefit from Magic Lamp are in outpatient treatment at the University of Mississippi Children's Word located in Jackson. Each year Chi Omega sorority plans a fundraiser to make wishes of children become realities with Magic Lamp.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The Chi Chapter of Delta Delta Delta extends to you greetings from The University of Mississippi. Tri-Delts have brought friendship, happiness and a sense of individuality to everyone with whom they are acquainted, since Chi Chapter was established in 1904.

Delta Delta Delta, along with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity sponsored a special fundraiser this year. The two organizations hosted a pre-Halloween party at Oxford Alley with all the profits benefitting Muscular Dystrophy. With Ben Friedman serving as the entertainment, the total turn out was estimated at around 400 students in attendance. Thte ticket price for the event was $5. Consequently, the Tri-Delt's were able to provide close to $2000 for the charitable organization.

As a whole, members of Tri-Delta always have many fun and exciting events: Fundraisers, bible study and pizza pals, having a good time at formals, Arrange-A-Date picnics, Valentines's Party and the annual Christmas party.

DELTA GAMMA

Alpha Psi of Delta Gamma is a special chapter, because it is the mother chapter. Delta Gamma was founded by three girls from Kosciusko, MS, in 1873 at Lewis School in Oxford. Since then Delta Gamma has flourished, being one of the most outstanding and most respected Greek organizations on campus. Of course, the heritage of Alpha Psi makes her strong, but her main strength lies with her members and the bonds of sisterhood that they feel for one another.

Delta Gamma strives to be a service-oriented organization. In addition to Anchor Splash, Delta Gamma conducts many fundraisers and projects. This year Delta Gamma, along with Phi Delta Theta fraternity, held a Christmas party for children of the Retardation Center.

Delta Gammas strive for excellence in many areas. They are also more than friends — they are sisters that share a special bond.

The Phi Chapter of St. Anthony Hall is the only deep South chapter of one of the oldes of the old line Ivy League fraternities is the United States. Other chapters range from Eastern universities such as Yale, Columbia, and M.I.T. and exten dow the Eastern seaboard to the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia.

Delta Psi is a traditionally small fraternity both nationally and locally because the qualities of brotherhood on which the fraternity was founded can be best maintained in the practice of limited membership.

DELTA SIGMA THETA

Delta Sigma Theta is a public service sorority that was founded on January 13, 1913 by 22 industrious young black women at Howard University. These women wanted to form an organization that would go beyond social activities and address the needs and concerns of black women. Their ideals and beliefs laid the foundation that has helped Delta Sigma Theta grow to become the largest black women's organization in the United States.

Since its inception, Delta Sigma Theta has made public service its primary goal. In addition to national efforts, each individual chapter is responsible for making contributions to its community. The Lambda Sigma Chapter at the University of Mississippi sponsors several events involving the Oxford community. They include an Annual Thanksgiving Dinner for Senior Citizens, periodical visits to the North Mississippi Retardation Center, participation in Girl Scouts, and a Health Fair. On campus, the Deltas participate in Greekshows, Greek Week, Derby Day, and sponsor a Male Auction.

KAPPA ALPHA ORDER

The men of Kappa Alpha are consistent leaders on campus. Excellence is achieved by each member of the fraternity in different areas. This is evident in campus involvement, academics, athletically, and socially. Each member strives to reach his best in these areas through constantly challenging himself to do better and by attempting to emulate the characteristics of the KA spiritual founding founder, Robert E. Lee.

The motto of Kappa Alpha is Dieu ei les Dames (God and Womanhood) and famous KA alumni are J. Edgar Hoover, George Patton, and Admiral Richard Byrd.

Although KAs are active in many aspects of campus life from ASB to Intramurals and SPB to ODK and Mortar Board, KAs are also known for their annual Old South Ball. All KAs and their dates dress up in old-fashioned costumes indicative of the Civil War era. Although not every body on campus gets to attend, it always fun to see all the antebellum dresses and soldier uniforms.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

In 1870, Kappa Alpha Theta became the very first women's fraternity, something all Theta chapters could be proud of.

Epsilon Zeta chapter at Ole Miss was founded in 1978, becoming the youngest sorority on campus. From that day more than a decade ago, Thetas have been an active group on campus.

Thetas are visible on campus as leaders, relettes, beauties, favorites, Rebel Recruiters, fraternity little sisters and sweethearts.

Theta's hold a special bond of friendship and togetherness. Being a Theta means fun and a lifelong time of sisterhood. Sisterhood and friendship are important to Thetas because being a Theta doesn't end in four years, it lasts a lifetime.

KAPPA ALPHA PSI

Chartered in 1911, Kappa Alpha Psi is the only black national greek letter organization with its Alpha chapter on the Indiana University campus. Therefore, the history is bound to the university and to the state.

Because of the negative atmosphere present on the campus in 1911, the ten founders sought to solidify friendship among others stressing high Christian ideals and the purpose of achievement. The founders of Kappa Alpha Psi were God-fearing, clean living, serious minded young men who possessed the imagination, ambition, courage and determination to defy custom in pursuit of a college education and career.

Elder Watson Diggs was concerned that black students at other universities enjoy the benefits of the fraternity. In his effort to spread the fraternity's ideals, chapters were formed across the nation such as the chartering of Kappa Alpha Psi at Ole Miss in 1982.

KAPPA DELTA

Kappa Deltas are busy all year round raising money for one of their two philanthropies, crippled children or the prevention of child abuse.

"We try to help out some of those people who are not as lucky as most people on this campus. The events are fun for everyone; we especially enjoy seeing some positive things being done for those who need help while people have a good time doing it," Reeves said.

The KDs host an annual golf tournament which involves students and local golfers, to raise money for crippled children or for the prevention of child abuse. This year almost $8,000 was raised during the golf tournament.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

The girls of Kappa Kappa Gamma are always looking for ways to help out those who are needy. In April the Kappas, along with Sigma Nu Fraternity, sponsored a volleyball tournament to help the foundation established to aid people with Muscular Dystrophy.

Melisse Campbell, a sophomore from Baton Rouge, said, "We (Kappas) sponsored the event not only as a way to raise money, but also to involve all people on campus. It was an excellent way to meet people and get to know them."

The tournament was divided into men and women, Greek and non-Greek divisions. Many of the prizes awarded were donated by various Oxford businesses.

Booths were set up in the Union and other places around campus to allow the non-participants to donate money for the foundation. Kappa officials reported that more than $1,500 was raised and donated to the Muscular Distrophy Foundation.

Throughout the year the Kappas commit themselves to service projects aimed at raising money for those in need. Through these projects they seem to search for ways to give others new, happier directions in which to face their lives.

Chapter: Delta Xi

Since: October 8, 1926

Nickname: Kappa Sigs

Colors: Scarlet, White, Green

On December 10, 1869, five friends and brothers met by firelight on a cold, windswept night in Charlottesville, Va. on the University of Virginia campus. The meeting was designed to establish a bond of brotherhood that was dedicated to the goals of learning and an institution shaped by the thinking of great thinking. This institution of fraternal brotherhood became Kappa Sigma.

The Delta Xi chapter of Kappa Sigma at Ole Miss has been consistently recognized at on of the top ten chapters of Kappa Sigma nationally.

Kappa Sigs have always been known for leadership on campus. They have been represented well in years past by senior class president, Order of Omega president, BACCHUS president, IFC treasurer, and Colonel Reb.

WELCOME Wyatt Waltman welcomes new Kappa Sig pledges Michael Pratt, Kenny Parker, and Taylor Archer to the house.

PI BETA PHI

As the first national secret society for women, Pi Beta Phi was founded at Monmouth College in Illinois on April 28, 1867, for the scholastic advancement of women.

Pi Phis claim the angel and arrow as their symbols. Members of Mississippi Alpha chapter are also proud of their house, which was modeled after Arrowmont, one of the philanthropies of Pi Beta Phi in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and is built in the shape of and arrow.

One can always recognize a Pi Phi by the golden arrow worn over the heart, and the warm smile she shares with others.

Pi Phis not only share a unity among their sisters, they also participate in many campus and community activities. Pi Phis are members of almost every organization and honorary on campus. Members have also continued to excel in both Intramurals and Greek Games every year.

PHI BETA SIGMA

On January 9, 1914, at Howard University, Washington, D.C., Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc. was founded by three ambitious young men. Still strong, all Sigmas share a two-fold goal: to promote brotherhood and community service and pursue scholastic excellence, which only proves that proves that Sigma lives up to its claim-Bigger, Better, and Bolder.

At Ole Miss, Eta Beta chapter is well known in the Oxford community because of the continued service given such as the adoption of the Burn's Day Care Center, annual visits to see the children at the North Mississippi Retardation Center, and many other service-oriented programs.

With the fraternity's move onto fraternity row, Phi Beta Sigma has become a major stepping stone for other historically black greek organizations and a major advocate to end racism. By doing this and stressing educational excellence, Phi Beta Sigma men prove that your dreams can become a reality.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Chapter: Mississippi Alpha

Since: April 17, 1857

Colors: Cardinal Red, Hunter Green

From Newton, N. J., to San Diego, Cal., Phi Psis at Ole Miss derive from all across the nation. Not only is Phi Kappa Psi diverse geographically, but also in the involvement around campus, including station manager of Channel 12, musicians in the University Orchestra, staff on the Ole Miss annual, and vice president of the Student Programming Board.

Phi Kappa Psi was nationally founded by young gentlemen who joined together to assist aid during the 1852 typhoid epidemic, and Mississippi Alpha has carried that theme of "helping others" throughout its 133 year history here at Ole Miss.

Phi Psi's major philanthropies include a blood drive at Shoney's in conjunction with Mississippi Blood Services and the Adopt-A-Highway, in which members clean up a two mile strip on Hwy. 7.

Phi Psi also co-hosted with Students Against Multiple Sclerosis the Fake-Your-Way-To-Mtv Contest. These preliminaries were held at The Alley which was a huge success.

PHI KAPPA TAU

Phi Kappa Tau was founded nationally in Oxford, Ohio, on March 17, 1906. Four young men founded a brotherhood based on truth, knowledge, and fellowship. Ever since the founding of the Delta Gamma chapter at Ole Miss in 1969, the members have worked to establish and uphold these goals.

Like other fraternities, Phi Tau tries to find ways to help the community through projects. However, members try to help groups one on one, rather than just raising money. Every year Phi Taus travel to Baptist Children's Village to play football with the children.

"We look forward to it not just because it is worthwhile, but because it is fun," said Mark Howser, Phi Tau president. "We don't just play football, we really talk to them."

Easter Seals is also a great concern for Phi Tau. The chapter sponsors a raffle ticket every year to raise interest and money.

ZETA PHI BETA

Zeta Phi Beta was organized on January 16, 1920, on the campus of Howard University by five coeds. These women dared to depart from the traditional coalitions for black women and sought to establish a new organization predicated on the precepts of scholarship, sevice, sisterhood, and finer womanhood.

Zeta chapters and auxiliary groups have given untotaled hours of voluntary service to educate the public, assist youth, provide scholarships, support organized charities, and promote legislation for social and civic change.

Tau Eta chapter of Ole Miss, established on November 13, 1976, has worked hard to award scholarships to deserving young students chosen as Scholars of the Year, as well as sponsor the Little Miss Blue Revue Pageant, the Christmas food drive, and other projects. Past projects include the Miss Teen Revue Pageant, Project Illiteracy Education at C.B. Webb housing project in Oxford, Adopt a Friend, and raising funds for Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Zeta recolonized at Ole Miss this year, after leaving three years ago, just in time for its 50th anniversary founding celebration in October 1989.

Zeta participated in formal rush through water parties and then held colonization rush Sept. 10-12, accepting lots of new pledges. Zeta had already hosted an informational party during Dixie Week pledging 15 girls.

Since colonization Zeta has had an active social calendar by participating in mixers and other functions, as well as beginning work on major philanthropies such as raising money for the Association of Retarded Citizens, Nationwide Eating Disorders Hotline, and AIDS education.

Founded in 1898, Zeta Tau Alpha stands as the third largest National Panhellenic Conference group with over 210 chartered collegiate chapters. "Love... the greatest of all things" serves as the founding precept of Zeta.

Enrollment hits all-time high

UM registered more than 10,000 students

For the first time in its 141-year history, The University of Mississippi has registered more than 10,000 students on its Oxford campus.

On the first day of the fall semester, 10,127 students had scheduled classes. The highest enrollment at Ole Miss before this was 9,655 in the late 1970s, said Gordon Beasley, vice chancellor for student affairs.

University officials expected and budgeted for about 9,800 students this fall, said Registrar Ken Wooten.

This is the fifth year in a row Ole Miss enrollment has increased, contrary to a national trend in university enrollment patterns. In the fall of 1984 Ole Miss had 8,172 students, Wooten said, and enrollment grew to a near-record of 9,639 last fall.

Increased enrollment means more tuition revenue for the university, but also an increased demand for everything on campus from classes and teachers to housing and parking.

Since Ole Miss is a state institution, tuition paid by students does not cover the entire operation costs of the university, said Ray Hoops, vice chancellor for academic affairs. Tuition revenue funds about 30 percent of the cost, he said.

Most of the revenue from the extra tuition will be used to fund more teaching positions and university operating expenses, said Doyle Russell, vice chancellor for administrative affairs.

To use the money, university officials must ask for spending authority from the Mississippi Board of Trustees of State Institutions and Higher Learning, Russell said.

In freshmen residence halls, more living space was created by converting television viewing rooms back to student lodging. This added 24 rooms for women and 30 more for men.

All of the residence halls were full except for Kincannon, and 30 freshmen men lived there, Beasley said. However, no tripling up in rooms designed for two people was needed.

The increase in enrollment has also intensified the already existent parking problems on campus, Beasley said.

"We need more parking everywhere," Beasley said.

Enrollment increases this year will afect the university's state funding for the fall of 1991, Russell said. The university will benefit more if it grows faster than other state institutions, he said.

The increases seem to be "pretty well spread across campus," Hoops said.

A record 1,816 new freshmen, transfers and adult learners attended summer orientation sessions, Wooten said. •

During the past ten years, Ole Miss has grown tremendously. Although tears were shed and many values were challenged, the bond existing within the university could only grow tighter.

It would seem that the negative forces present at Ole Miss during the past decade would be so detrimental that the school's image would be completely shattered.

Reaching to higher height was the main force that prevented us from slipping. Students and staff were willing to step in to attain quality programs, better eduacational resources and racial equality.

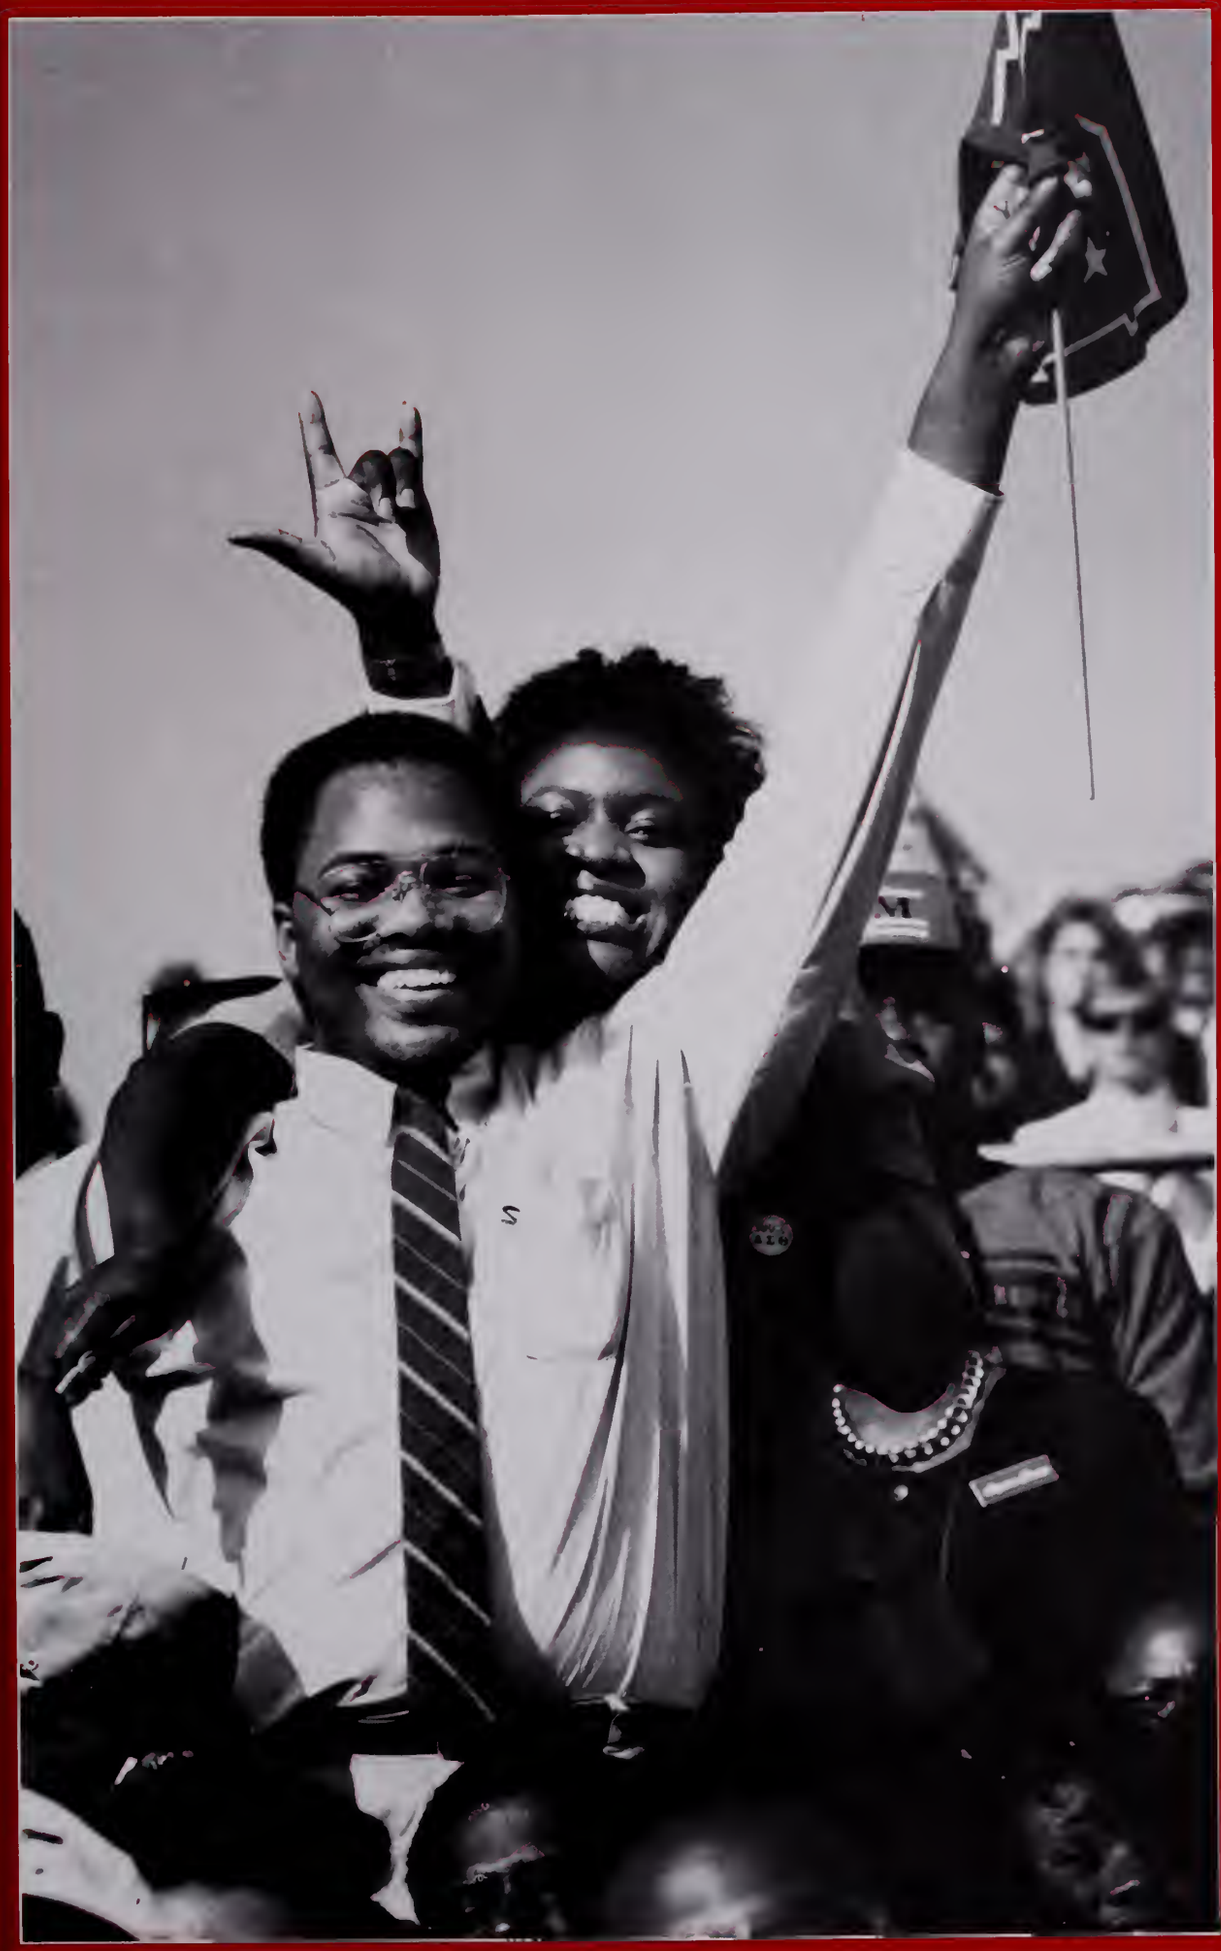

Even in the midst of turmoil, we stood. For we remembered the saying, "United we stand; divided we fall."

Carefree we became but courageous we remained. For we were always ready to tackle life's battles, whether it was a calculus problem or the dissolution of a treasured tradition.

Thursay through Sunday were our times of joy were always on hand — partying at the Gin, Off the Wall or the Alley, football games, tye dying or frisbee in the grove — what more could we ask for?

In tough times, we stood together to comfort each other and passed around enough love and support so that each of us felt special.

Often we it seemed that we weren't progressing as we should, we gave ourselves a little kick to rekindle the flame.

Now when we look back at our past, we honor it. For it was this past that enabled us to embark upon a new and exciting future, one that we will mold with each passing year.

Some things may have happened that we wish hadn't but we can also look toward the new decade and remind ourselves of the prosperous things Ole Miss is accomplishing.
NEW DIRECTIONS — A vison for tomorrow.

Kan't believe it's over! I knew that this day would come but it just wasn't coming fast enough. It seemed like everytime I'd think the end was approaching, the date would slip further down the calendar.

I guess I'm supposed to thank people for helping me, so I'll do that first.

First, I thank God for giving me the strength, the endurance and the sanity to complete this book, for without his love and guidance, I could never have accomplished this.

Next, thanks goes to my parents, (especially my mother). Each time I would feel that life in the yearbook offfice was too depressing, there was confidence in knowing they were constantly keeping me in their prayers and more often than not in their pockets.

Of course many thanks goes to the staff members who stayed on to help me finish this book: Deanne Mosley, Elizabeth Brooks, August Laurent, Whitney Swindoll, Missy Pace, Michael Huffines, Helen Ma, Mary Kincaid, Theresa Champion, Sherri Prestridge, Brook Anthony, and special "sticker" staff, Beth Josephic.

I couldn't forget my hardworking and dedicated secretary, Tammie Turner. Little does she know, she was my right arm, my inspiration, and my little sister.

Now, Ken and Melvin, I don't know what to say about you guys. I know this book would not have been possible without you. Even though we argued and fussed — mostly you argued with each other — I could see the friendship that we shared that went beyond that of co-workers.

This year has been quite an experience. Not many of my original plans were carried out. Problems seemed to arise on every hand — from staff members quitting to computer sickness. But the yearbook is finished.

Although the problems unfolded first semester, they didn't quite hit me until second semester. I didn't particularly like all the attention I received from the media, so I ignored it. I knew that I was doing the best job that I could and nothing or no one could deter me from that belief.

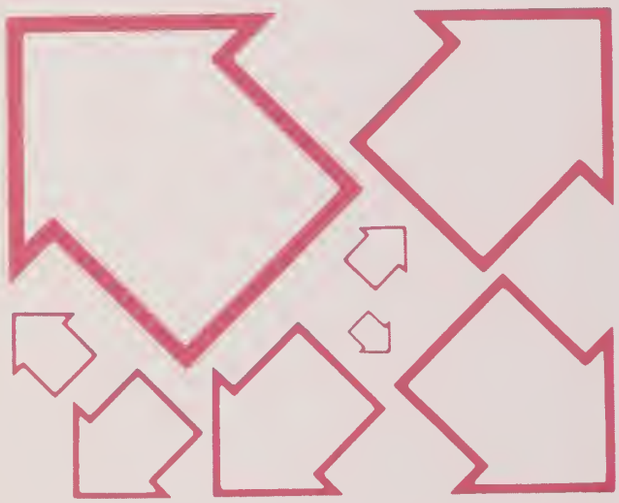

I knew that my being the first black editor of a major publication would draw attention, but I can honestly say that I've had more than my share.

And when it seemed that no one was helping me, I kept going, for I had faith that it would soon could to an end. "Good things come to those who wait."

To the next editor, August,don't panic. I don't know what your outcome will be, but I hope it will be as rewarding as mine. Remember that good help is hard to come by for free.

Before I turn this Typevision computer off for the last time, I want to extend personal thanks to Lloyd Dixon, Robbie Buford, and my brother Frank. Without you guys I definitely don't think I could have survived. Lloyd, thanks for being my friend (not my slave); Robbie thanks for being. . .Robbie; and Frank thanks for being my pesty little brother. Special, special thanks to my Sorors, The 12 Flames, Delta Express and Cynthia. You guys gave me a lot of support.

Katrina J. Howard
